MAYOR SUGGESTS CITY YOUTH COUNCIL

DC, PACIFICA GET SEWAGE 'CEASE—DESIST' ORDERS

The North County Sanitation District has received a cease and desist order that will compel the district to extend the ocean sewage outfall line.

The Bay Area Water Pollution Control Board issued the order to prevent continued pollution of the Thornton Beach area that has been caused by discharge of sewage into the acean at a point too close to the beach.

At the March 26 meeting of the sanitation district, the board of directors hired the firm of Brown and Caldwell as consulting engineers to submit plans for the new outfall line, estimated to cost from $300,000 and $400,000. The present line is 22 feet long, and it will be the engineer's job to determine how long the new one must be.

Director James V. Fitzgerald indicated on Monday that application for Federal funds will be made to assist in paying the cost of the project. Funds are available under Public Law 660. The remaining cost will be paid through taxes. Fitzgerald said that the district favors the pay as you go basis rather than a bond issue.

Fitzgerald also indicated that state aid would be sought, but that it was harder to come by.

"There's a lot of Southern California members on the state board," he said.

The alternative to extending the ocean outfall line would be a secondary treatment plant, but Fitzgerald stated that cost of such a plant would be prohibitive.

District Secretary Marie Muylaert said that the odor problem caused by a secondary plant would be insurmountable.

The Water Pollution Control Board issued the cease and desist orders to both the North County Sanitation District and the Pacifica City Council. Both agencies were instructed to do something about the contamination of the ocean beaches.

Fitzgerald said that the North County District plans to hire the best men available to draw the specifications. The problem is not an easy one to solve, he said, because of the dangerous surf and tides in the area.

Pacifica

A different approach is being followed in Pacifica. The city council has chosen to ignore the order, an dto fight it legally if necessary.

Calling the Bay Area Board's actions "punitive and arbitrary," the councilmen stated that the order was passed by the board without notifying the city that the matter was even coming up, and thus the city was not able to testify in its own behalf.

Pacificans are still using an old outfall line while their new $1,300,000 bond issue project is being completed.

Quake Felt In Daly City

Over 40 telephone calls flooded the local police department as a "sharp" earthquake that did no damage was reported in Daly City at 12:50 a.m. March 24.

Seismologist Dr. Don Tocher at University of California said the quake centered near Pacifica police received no complaints.

In San Francisco, windows were cracked and dishes toppled from shelves in various areas of the city, but no serious damage was reported.

The quake registered between 2.25 and 2.5 on the Richter scale, Dr. Tocher said.

South San Francisco police received several calls, many of them concerned with "prowlers" homeowners thought they had heard.

Prostitution Case Called 'Sordid Affair'

Daly City police have cleared up what they term a "sordid" affair with the arrest of 28-year-old Dolores R. Wenz, of 77½ Hillcrest drive, on prostitution charges.

She was arrested after an investigation of two weeks as allegedly operating as a prostitute and consorting with teenage high school boys.

Wednesday night, March 21, Officer Robert Stables was admitted to her front door and paid her $6 in marked bills. The arrest was then effected.

Suggestive

Officers said numerous juveniles had visited her apartment in the past weeks. The boys would go there to drink beer and she would sometimes entertain with "suggestive" dances, police said.

The boys, police said, made free use of her apartment and on one occasion when police were there to quell a disturbance, some boys were concealed there. The woman allegedly had solicited adults in the business district.

Inspector Phillip LaBruzzo is investigating charges against the minors involved. Police said they will file contributing to delinquency charges against her also.

Suicide Attempts

One 18-year-old boy was arrested on a charge of lewd conduct. The high school boys involved are being interviewed by officers Tom Donahue and Labruzzo.

The woman pled quilty March 18 to the prostitution charge and is being held on $1,000 bail pending a probation officer's report.

Police called the case "sordid." They have nine previous complaints involving her.

Officers are investigating the need for psychiatric care for the woman. She has been treated at Community Hospital several times for suicide attempts, police said.

On January 31, 1961, she reportedly slashed her wrists in a suicide attempt on the steps of the city hall.

Police said the woman was obviously "preying" on the teenage boys and was using her prostitution money to help supplement her welfare payments.

Police "Buried" By Burglaries

During the past several months, the burglary rate in Daly City has risen considerably. Where a burglary was reported once every other day or so, to the police department, the rate of burglaries is now over one a day.

Special investigator James Bergstrom and Lt. David Hansen are literally "buried" under a pile of burglary reports. And the reports keep coming in.

To help curb the burglaries, Bergstrom asks the citizens to help out by reporting break-ins immediately to the police department — don't wait a couple of days to do it.

On The Way Up

Bergstrom says the burglary rate will beat the preceeding six months and the preceeding year.

There have been more than 24 burglaries committed this month and a total of about 80 committed in Daly City since the beginning of 1962. Twenty-three were cleared by arrests.

In 1960, 72 burglaries were cleared by arrest, however, half of the 72 were cleared by the arrest of one man, the notorius "Cat Burglar." There were a total of 265 burglaries between June 30, 1960 and July 31, 1961 . . . 56 committed in the day-time and 209 at night.

Last November the Daly City police department added an additional man to its investigation detail to work a three months period. This was to cope with the burglary problem.

After The Arrest

In the six month period from July, 1961 through December, 1961, 31 of 151 burglaries were cleared by arrest. Twenty of the burglaries were cleared in November when the additional man was hired.

The Rivera Brothers hit Daly City on three nights this year. They had worked for approximately six weeks on break-ins from Santa Clara through Daly City.

Their arrest cleared up 14 burglaries in Daly City. Bergstrom feels they did more break-ins, but that "they can't remember all of them." The brothers recall about 200.

The time spent on the arrest by Lieutenant Hansen and Bergstrom was approximately 15 minutes.

Time spent on preparing reports on the Rivera brothers has consumed about 90 hours. The work is not completed.

"After the arrest and the men are put in jail, then the work really starts," Bergstrom said.

Police Precautions

As a warning to homeowners and auto owners he said that (1. If you have something in your car of value, lock it in the trunk. "A lot of people take the opportunity to steal. You never know when you're going to be hit." Favorite places for burglarizing cars are in car ports and shopping centers.

2) If a house is broken into, the department suggests that "items of value" that can be picked up and taken away, such as TV sets, cameras, watches, jewelry and guns . . . "stuff easily pawned" should be recorded by serial number. Keep a copy in a safe place.

3) Be on the lookout for suspicious persons . . . "phone callers who don't answer . . . people asking for a Mr. Jones or a Mr. Smith. These are the daylight burglars. Night time burglars don't have to knock on your door or call."

4) If a suspicious person with auto is seen, get a description of the car and take down the license number. Just in case something did happen in the area, record it, write it down and pass on the information to the police.

However Bergstrom cautioned the public not to "get scared and plague us with phone calls."

Committee Of 5,000 Backing Incumbents

As the city council campaign here moved into its final two weeks, the incumbents were making an intensive effort to take a lead over the seven candidates seeking to unseat them.

Micheal De Bernardi, Edward J. Dennis and Robert B. St. Clair are running on their records of accomplishment and the progress Daly City has made under their administration.

Their candidacies are being backed by the Daly City Committee of 5000, one of the largest and most enthusiastic campaign organizations ever formed in this community.

Each candidate is keeping a full schedule of activities, from coffee klatches to public forums, aimed at fully explaining the vital issues of the campaign and discussing their platforms.

San Mateo County Registar of Voters John Keefer predicted that more than 50 per cent of the city's 20,527 voters will cast ballots in the April 10 municipal election.

No issues will appear on the ballot.

John B. Drye, co-chairman of the Daly City Committee of 5000, said that before election day the incumbents will make every effort to get his message across to every householder in the community.

He pointed out that the present city council has brought unprecedented stability to city administration; is operating with a balanced budget on a pay-as-you-go fiscal policy and with the lowest bonded indebtedness in California.

He added that the incumbent council has formulated policies which have brought city departments to new heights of

Pedestrian Hit In S. San Franciso

A South San Francisco high school youth was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital Tuesday, March 27, after he was struck by a truck while crossing Linden avenue, west of Airport boulevard in South San Francisco.

The student, Leonarde Velarde, Jr., 16, of 1313 Hillside boulevard, South San Francisco, stepped out of a car that stopped in the line of traffic. He started to cross the street when he was struck by the truck driven by Eugeno Chiabattari, of 106 Havlock, San Francisco.

Council Concerned Over Hood Problem

During a meeting that was otherwise taken up with zoning and campaigning, Mayor St. Clair and the city council took time Monday night to remark on thecurrent outbreak of youth hooliganism in the city.

St. Clair specifically brought up the recent brawls that have taken place around the Serra Theater and suggested that the facilities there were not adequate to handle the volume.

The mayor brought up the idea of a youth council that could be organized to act as a "sounding board" for youth and its problems.

"I would suggest," said the mayor, "that as soon as the elections are over we organize some kind of a council of citizens to discuss what can be done to help the police with the problem of juvenile delinquency."

Paris Simmons, candidate for the council, suggested that some kind of a vocational school might be an answer. He said that the vagrant youth problem in Daly City was extraordinary, and that he felt statistics would indicate that Daly City had more of a problem than surrouning communities.

Councilman Joe Verducci challenged Simmons to produce statistics to verify his remarks. Simmons said that he would.

Zoning Controversy

About 30 people from the Southern Hills area around Bellvue and Polaris streets showed up to object to a rezoning reuest made by the Panorama Development Company.

Panorama is requesting rezoning on lots 1-18, block 1, Southern Hills, from R-1 to R-2; from single to multiple family dwellings. The request recently came before the planning commission and was approved. The ordinance was to have been passed last night.

One man, John Corrigan, 261 Polaris way, bore a petition with the names of 230 families against the rezoning. The residents feel the street in question is not wide enough to handle the traffic from the 15 additional families that would live in the proposed duplexes.

Panorama spokesman E. V. Schulhauser denied this and stated that the planning commission recommended approval because of the "buffer zone" that multiple units provide between single family units and unclassified areas. This "buffer zone" of rental units then borders commercial areas instead of family owned residences.

The council closed the hearing but postponed action until each councilman acn view the disputed area.

Candidates Appear

In addition to Paris Simmons, three other aspirants for the three council vacancies showed up to address the council.

Sheldon Prezant appeared to thank the council for recent help received by the mud-stricken Westlake homeowners.

George Kirchhubbel was there to "explore the conduct of this election." Kirchhubbel maintained that the ballots that have been prepared for the April 10 election are unfair, and that they contain a gimmick to influence the voters in their choice.

City Clerk Evelyn Mosman assured Kirchhubbel that the sample ballot he had seen was not the same one that would appear at the polls, and that county law had been followed in the preparation of the ballots.

Harry Farber appeared to ask the council to do all it could to have the open shaft in the vicinity of San Fernando way covered to avert future accidents to area children. This was in reference to Gary McDaniels, who was rescued by Daly City firemen last week.

Other Action

In other action, the city council:

Accepted the resignation of Assistant City Manager Phillip J. Brown, and voted him a letter of commendation.

Held over the hearing on classification of city employees.

Granted variances to H. Miller in Mission Street Tract.

Granted 12 business licenses.

Released a report of expenditures for parks and recreation during the past four years.

Recreation and Parks Department expenditures 1958-1962:
1958-1959—$113,873.
1959-1960—$109,786.
1960-1961—$157,397.
1961-1962—$228,805.

Operating expenses rose from $104,542 to $167,705 during the four year period. Capital outlay from $9,331 to $61,000.

Burglary Victims 'Jack Up Claims'

Inspector James Bergstrom of the Daly City police department said this week that burglary victims in Daly City are frequently "jacking up their insurance claims."

"They call the police department at first and don't know everything that's missing. They report several items are gone. We take their word for it, put out a report and teletype on the stolen goods."

Bergstrom cited, as an example, the recent arrest of a burglar for six thefts in the Peninsula.

A homeowner reported a loss of several thousand dollars before he knew the burglar was caught. The burglar admitted to less than the owner

Dispatch Officer Is A Harried Man

By Jack Wood

It is 10:20 a. m. A tall, red-headed officer stands waiting at the day desk of the Daly City police department.

Officer James Welsh, the dispatch officer, is trying to make out an arrest report. Welsh takes down an address, but is waylaid from his duties when the telephone rings.

Another phone rings and he has a telephone at each ear. Now, as the tall policeman waits, Welsh takes down a complaint from a citizen on a petty theft from an automobile.

Another officer calls over the police radio situated at the day desk. Welsh answers it. "5257," he calls out. And then he says "10:36 a. m." and hangs up. The officer at the patrol car says "10-4" and cuts out.

Welsh goes to the files to dig up a report the officer wants. Another telephone call brings him back.

Then the officer finally says he'll stop back at noon. "Keep you busy here, don't they?" Welsh is asked.

"Yeah, yeah," he says tiredly. "They need two people here, really."

The other officers have it a lot easier. They can chat with each other. But with one phone at his ear all the time, the dispatch officer can barely do an efficient job.

Well Run Department

Daly City's police department, for the most part, is an efficient, well-run organization.

The filing system appears sound, detective work, teenage investigation and burglary investagation is efficient and well organized.

Police are generally a courteous lot and "customers" are not turned away.

It would appear, however, that the day desk organization could be improved by adding another man. This would give each officer time to process his reports.

Another inconvenience that may be noted is the Daly City police department method of taking reports on a tape recorder.

A Long Wait

True, for the police, this method is very, very efficient, but the public doesn't have access to the reports until the following day after the complaint was made.

If an arrest is made, sometimes the report will be buried for 24 hours. This is particullarly apparent on Monday morning when the department is buried under a stack of reports gathered over the weekend which could not be typed up due to lack of personnel.

Candidates To Talk April 5 At Colma K-6

Daly City council candidates will have a chance to air their views April 5 in an "impartial open forum" sponsored by the Hillside Homeowners Improvement Club.

The meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. at the Colma K-6 multi-purpose room, Market and Hillside.

Frank Loretta, club president, stated the public would find ample space in the meeting room.

Each candidate will introduce himself and make a brief talk. A question and answer period will follow.

HS Board To Hire 49 New Teachers

The Jefferson Union High School District will hire 49 new instructors for next year to take care of increased enrollments, according to Superintendent Edward Morgan.

Morgan announced at the March 26 district board meeting that 15 teachers have been hired and 40 will be the result of enrollment increases. Seven have resigned.

Next year there will be approximately 800 new high school students in the district, he said. Ten new teachers will be hired for Jefferson High School, 19 at Oceana High School, seven at Terra Nova and 13 at Westmoor.

Foreign Student

The board also approved participation in the American field service program. Westmoor parents have made arrangements for housing one foreign student next year to be enrolled at Westmoor High.

Jeff High Work Begun

A notice to proceed with construction of the $1,181,000 contract for additions and alterations to Jefferson High School was approved by the district board of trustees.

Completion date is 320 calendar days from the starting date, March 19, which will be Feb. 1, 1963. The unit 'E' auto shop will be completed for occupancy by October.

The present auto shop will be modernized and divided into two shops. The present metal shop and wood shop will be modernized.

The contract calls for construction of 28 classrooms, five science labs, two arts and crafts rooms, a music room, library, electronics shop, photo lab and administrative unit.

Jefferson gymnasium repairs and installation of locker and shower rooms are due to be completed in July.

A Good Play, But No Audience Shows

The Daly City players had everything they needed Friday and Saturday, March 23 and 24 for success of their three-one act plays, except:

(1) An audience.

(2) Enough money to pay the royalties and run "The Lady of Larkspur Lotion," "Impromptu" and "Intermission" out for a string of several weeks.

However, for those at the War Memorial Community Center who witnessed the plays, the time was well spent.

Columbine, played by Sarita Kronquest and Pierott, acted by Dave Crommie, were amusing in the first act "Aria da Capo" and even came off with some memorable lines such as "Let Us drink some wine, lose our heads and love each other," and "I'm getting tired of peacock's livers and caviar."

This skit contrasted as a parody against the next sequence in the same act as the "shepherds," Lee Williams and Allen Miller, were distrustful of each other.

Larkspur Lotion was completed in typical Tennessee Williams fashion with the tenant Mrs. Hardwick-Moore, played by Bonnie Helmer, accused of being a prostitute, and being consoled by her next door neighbor, Lee Williams who played an alcoholic writer.

Ipromptu, with cool, sophisticated Karen Commie as Winifred, dramatic William Hanna as Ernest and sensitive Dave Crommie as Tony, made an attempt at putting together a play, but ended up putting out real life instead.

5-Year-Old Unhurt After 60-Foot Fall

Five-year-old Gary McDaniels of Daly City tumbled head first down a 60-foot well March 25 at the site of the proposed Mary's Help Hospital and escaped without a scratch.

Daly City firemen, who pulled the boy out said, Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McDaniels, of 221 St. Francis boulevard, was uot playing with his 8-year-old friend, Billy Carver, of 206 St. Francis boulevard.

They crossed the city limits into San Francisco and entered a shack on the hospital site. Inside was a well. As the two boys played around it Gary tumbled into an opening.

Billy ran into the street and hailed an unidentified woman, who pulled a fire alarm. With the aid of flashlights, firemen could see Gary 60 feet below, clinging to a pipe that ran from the top of the well to the bottom.

When Gary dropped into the well, he had managed to grab the pipe, right himself and come to a stop with only his feet in the water.

Firemen lowered a rope with a loop in the end and pulled the boy to the surface, uninjured.

claimed. The homeowner lowered his claims, saying he had found some of his stolen goods, police said.

Another instance was of victims who claimed more than that what two thives agreed they have stolen. "The victims are claiming more than the thieves got," police said.

Their two angles of making money on it, he said . . . insurance claims and income tax deduction.

But insurance rates go up if claims go up. The people who claim more than they should make other people suffer," Bergstrom said.

"This is something we can't prove, but they can be prosecuted for making a false report," he stated.

Classroom Experience Valuable For Teacher

Student teachers consider actual classroom teaching the most valuable experience in the teacher education program according to Mrs. Alice Siemons, acting head of the elementary student teaching division at San Francisco State Teachers College and co-ordinator of student teaching.

Mrs. Siemons and Jack Danielson, director of guidance and personnel for the Jefferson Elementary School District, presented a well integrated coverage of this subject at Garden Village PTA's March 20 meeting, discussing student teaching from the viewpoint of both the college which trains the prospective teachers and the school district which receives them during a portion of the training period.

The consensus was that the student teachers program is valuable not only to those learning classroom techniques but also to supervising teachers, to children in the classroom and to the district.

While giving of their time and experience, master teachers themselves gain through the advantage of being able to confer when necessary; the district has a first-hand opportunity to screen prospective teachers and familiarize them with district practices.

Prime business of the evening meeting was the election of the unit's 1962-63 officers: Mrs. Jack Mitchell, president; Mr. C. J. Martindale, honorary vice president; Mrs. John Zapian, vice president; Mrs. John Pickens, recording secretary; Mrs. Richard Peterson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Cloonan, financial secretary; Mrs. William Proctor, treasurer; Mrs. Warren Vocke, new ideas and new methods; with two teachers in the classroom, the student is often able to devote extra time to children in need of special attention, and the two teachers have historian, and Mr. Robert Fernekes, auditor.

Mrs. Koenig's first graders enhanced the March theme of the decorations with gay kites, while Mrs. Relyea's third grade class created an array of paper shamrocks to brighten the walls of the multi-purpose room.

Hostesses serving refreshments at the close of the meeting were kindergarten room representatives, Mrs. C. Cristofani, Mrs. R. Lamp, Mrs. W. Whitney, Mrs. W. Dollar, Mrs. Mrs. W. Dorn, Mrs. E. Glischinski, Mrs. D. Perry, Mrs. E. Fontana, Mrs. J. Pickens and Mrs. J. Zapian.

efficiency and has been able to finance a sound program of progress with a tax rate comparable to any city of similar size in the state while providing for an extensive capital outlay program.

"We are proud of our community, the position of unparalled prestige it holds with our neighbors and of the untiring efforts that have been made by our efficient city government to keep it free of vice and corruption," he said.

"De Bernardi, Dennis and St. Clair are dedicated public servants who have represented the community honestly and fairly.

"Their contriubtions to the constructive approaches that have been necessary to overcome the critical problems of recent years have proven their integrity, have demonstrated their outstanding qualifications and have earned them the respect and the support of the voters.

"During their administration, the city council employed one of the best qualified and outstanding public administrators in California.

"The selection of Edward Frank as city manager was made without political consideration and was based on his qualifications, experience and reputation.

"He has tightened the reins of government and with the full support of the council has brought new stability and financial responsibility to city administration here.' '

Drye pointed out that the hiring of Frank was symbolic of the enlightened efforts the incumbents have made to elevate Daly City to new levels of accomplishment.

He explained that in recent years, new procedures have been adopted which have brought the police department to new peeks of efficiency and that similar results have been obtained from new training programs in other departments.

Drye shares the co-chairmanship of the Committee of 5000 with Lowell E. Durham and Edward O'Donnell.

Postal Clerk Dies In Crash

A Daly City postal clerk and father of six children died in a single car auto crash at 1:36 a.m. March 24 as his car smashed into a light standing at Junipero Serra boulevard, just south of Alemany.

Police reported Richard L. Matgen, 36, 768 Niantic, was making a right turn from Alemany boulevard and lost control east bound onto Junipero Serra. The front end of his car was a total wreck.

He was rushed to Peninsula Hospital in critical condition.

One of Luther Burbank's most extensive experiments, extending over 16 years, produced a variety of luxuriantly growing spineless cacti, useful for feeding cattle in arid regions.

"A FASHIONABLE A-FAIR," the Sunshine Gardens Women's Club salute to the Seattle World's Fair, will be the theme for the sixth annual fashion-luncheon show on March 31. Show fashions for the Hilton Inn affair will be provided by the Patio Shops of San Bruno and Burlingame. Featured will be new spring costumes designed to win compliments at any fair or Easter season function. Set to model for the show are (left to right) Mrs. Hank Haley, Mrs. Cal Larsen, Mrs. Don Schumacher, Mrs. Richard Arlee and Mrs. Clint Olson. Tickets are $3.50 per person. Playwright Guest For National Library Week

National LibraryWeek will be observed by the Friends Of The Daly City Library with a special reception to be held at the Westlake Library on Sunday, April 8, from 3 to 5 p. m.

Honored guest on this occasion will be Mark Harris, distinguished author and playwright, currently professor of English at San Francisco State College.

Harris says of himself that he is "a story-teller" who has written novels about soldiers and ball players — that he is not a sociologist or psychologist. His intent is not to educate or reform. Harris' many published works, in addition to his novels, include essays, reviews and stories published in national magazines.

One of his novels, "Bang the Drum Slowly," was adapted for television production. Last season his play, "Friedman and Son," was presented in San Francisco by the Actors Workshop.

Mrs. Thomas Brewer, president of the Friends Of The Daly City Library, and Samuel Chandler, Daly City librarian, cordially invite all interested citizens of the community to be present at the April 8 reception.

Ex-Con Dons 'Ape-Skins,' Pulls Burglary

A Pacifica ex-con stole two cars Monday night, March 26, burglarized a used car lot office in Daly City, and was arrested early Tuesday when his wife called Pacifica police and complained he was beating her. Police said he had been drinking.

Arrested for auto theft and burglary was Ronald Delmar Valasco, 27, a shipping clerk, of 448 Glasgow drive, Pacifica.

Officers said he admitted breaking into Stewart Motors, 6801 Mission street, stealing a station wagon and loading it with a TV set, battery charger drill, electric polisher, electric razor, tire and wheel, paint, and various tools.

He then allegedly drove the station wagon home, unloaded the loot in his house and drove it back, where he took a 1957 Oldsmobile hardtop and drove it home.

His wife called Pacifica police, claiming Valasco was beating her. Pacifica officers Ed Sarsfield and Ray Shipley walked into the home and discovered the burglarized items. They found Valasco upstairs where he readily admitted the crime.

Valasco was then transported back to the Daly City jail by officers Tom Culley and Neil Hammerman, where he was interrogated by Inspector Philip LaBruzzo.

Westborough Diggings Have Found Fossils

Fossils of sea animals who swam the ocean a million years ago have been discovered high atop a coast range ride in northern San Mateo county.

Graders excavating the hillsides near Skyline boulevard for homes in Westborough, the $150,000,000 planned community, found their bulldozers halted by wide banks of brilliant white shells and tiny skeletons firmly cemented together.

Geologist Joe Crosby investigated the find, and after a series of examinations and tests, revealed that the fossils in the marine conglomerate were around a million years old.

"At least a third of these sea animals are now extinct," Crosby said. "So this is a big help in piecing together our geological jigsaw puzzle."

He pointed out briefly that although pre-historic seashells on a mountain top may seem strange, there is a sensible explanation.

"Recently, about a million years ago, the whole coast range was under the Pacific, and what is now San Francisco Bay formed the coast," he said.

"At that time, sand was washed from the shore and deposited atop the fossils on the ocean floor. Pressure from this sand and water over a few hundred thousand years cemented them together into these solid mounds."

When the Ice Age came (practically yesterday, according to Crosby), the Bay was gouged out and a series of earthquakes lifted the Peninsula. Top soil eventually hid the fossils under the forests of the coast range. They would have remained hidden, had not the area been so extensively graded for home sites.

Ranging in width from 400 to 500 feet, the banks of fossils are posing an interesting problem for Westborough graders.

"They may be fascinating geologically," the grading supervisor complained, "but we still have to blast them apart and push them out of the building area."

Miss Thorne, as second place contestant, was awarded a number of lovely prizes.

Navy Sets Cold Storage Plan

Chief Kelly of the Navy Recruiting Office, 6705 Mission street, Daly City, has announced the start of the 1962 Cold Storage Program. Young men graduating in June are now being screened and processed for enlistment in June, July and August.

Men found to be fully qualified will have it hard to get technical schools reserved for the month they plan to enlist. Some of these schools, to list a few, are electronics, nuclear power, radio, musician and hospital corpsman.

Men who are interested may obtain more information by stopping by the recruiting office or calling PL 6-3740. The office is kept open until 8 p. m. on Wednesday, and from 10 a. m. until 2:30 p. m. on Saturday.

All men selected for this program will receive their physical and Armed Forces qualification test over the Easter holidays so as not to interfere with school classes.

Supervisor Chess Seeks Re-Election

Supervisor T. Louis Chess, who is presently serving as chairman of the board of supervisors, this week launched his county-wide campaign for re-election on June 5.

He announced that Claude J. Hirschey, prominent Peninsula businessman, has accepted the chairmanship of the citizens committee supporting his candidacy.

In accepting the responsibility for Chess' re-election bid, Hirschey stated that, along with thousands of other San Mateans, he has been impressed with Chess' outstanding record of achievent during his first four-year term on the board.

"Louis Chess, with characteristic vigor and intelligence, has offered the kind of leadership needed during the county's greatest residential and commercial growth," Hirschey stated.

"We all know the importance of maintaining a balanced economy in the county to keep taxes at a minimum level, and Chess has energetically worked toward this goal. Since his election he has successfully devoted much of his time and effort toward attracting industry here to lessen the cost of local government on homeowners," Hirschey said. "He has, also, helped expand recreational areas and worked on improving and modernizing the county road system."

His campaign area chairmen are: Peter J. Markovich, first district; Michael B. O'Connor, second district; David D. Bohannon, third district; Earle Williamson, fourth district, and J. Ed McClellan, fifth district.

Cub Pack 259 Has Induction Ceremony

Randy Bushner was inducted into Pack 259 at the March meeting with all Cubs participating in the ceremony. Sal Scadute, committee chairman, pinned on a Bobcat pin as Randy officially became a Cub Scout.

Den 2 had a display and one of their projects was the construction of rockets. They used these to give a demonstration of a rocket derby as the pack is planning just such an event for next month.

Den 5 presented a skit entitled "The Plight of the Octopus"—the various things happening from the time they were Cub Scouts until they became Tenderfoot Scouts.

Kevin LaRock, Robert Smith, Max Bushner, Eric Weintraub, Michael Simoneau, Jeffrey Simoneau and Randy Bushner made large hand puppets of an octopus face with colored paper chains that were wiggled as they spoke.

Hoodlums And Wells

A goodly portion of Monday night's council session was taken up in discussing two very important problems to the people in this area. These two subjects were: What to do concerning the quelling of young hoodlums, and how to avoid tragedy that might be caused by an uncovered well.

As for the young hoodlums, Mayor St. Clair was quite emphatic in his statement that something must be done immediately to stop the series of beatings and other vicious actions that seem to be on a sudden upsurge throughout the area. It was suggested that a thorough investigation and discussion of the situation be made and that the police department be given any help they need to control the situation.

The wells pose a somewhat different problem as they are outside of the city limits and are under county control. An inquisitive, adventurous youngster is apt at any time to slip into an uncovered well and fall to his death. One youngster fell into one just last week but fortunately was rescued in time.

They are a menace to children and, although a county problem, it was the unanimous reaction of the council that steps must be taken immediately to alleviate the danger.

Professor Speaks On Taxation

Dr. Jacob A. Stockfisch, associate professor of business administration at UCLA, declares that a fresh approach to methods of taxation are needed to avoid complete control by centralized national government.

He believes that state and local government will inevitably have to rely increasingly on the federal government unless they abandon the "hidden subsidies" of present taxation practices.

As an alternative to turning to Washington for additional financial aid, he suggests a three-point program of tax reform:

1. More realistic charges should be made for certain government services, such as water, power, trash collection, and required inspections.

2. More realistic assessments should be made on land to keep pace with increasing land values in California. In the period from 1946 to 1958, assessments on land were increased only 118 per cent in contrast to assessments on buildings and other improvements, which were increased 250 per cent.

3. Publicly-owned public utilities should pay taxes on assets and should increase rates enough to cover such costs. To the extent that such utilities are subsidized, the product is sold below cost and "buyers will use the commodity or service more lavishly, for they do not have so strong an incentive to use it economically and efficiently. Herein lies a source of waste far greater than the real or imagined kinds attributed to government "bureaucracy."

Clothing Drive Aid Increases

The St. Vincent de Paul Salvage Bureau will complete the final packing of a 900,000-pound shipment of useable clothing and shoes for free distribution to needy people in underprivileged countries.

The shipments represent collections of clothing that have been picked up in various Far-Western States as part of the annual Catholic Relief Services' Clothing Drive.

St. Vincent de Paul officials indicate that this year's drive represents an increase of 70,000 pounds over last year and is the second highest collection since the annual drives began in 1948.

The clothing and shoes will be distributed abroad without regard to the race, creed or ethnic background of the needy by Catholic Relief Services and will be part of a national shipment from other United States ports totaling 10,500,000 pounds.

Something For Everyone

by
Samuel Chandler

There is a lot of information in the Library regarding the issues of the campaign for the positions on the City Council. Foremost is a compilation of the laws of the State of California pertaining to the government of cities and local agencies. Here one finds the law that governs annexations, that regulates the maximum tax that may be levied and directs how the revenue thus received can be spent. Here is the state law governing civil service and retirement as it pertains to the employees of city governments.

To use this book, one must consult the table of contents which lists the topics under the title of the California code, subdividing them by the division of the law and then by article.

Another informative volume is the Municipal Yearbook for 1961. This is an authoritative resume of activities and statistical data of American cities. It has five parts: Government units, municipal personnel, municipal finance, municipal activities and directories of officials.

During the present campaign, Section 3 of this yearbook is especially useful. It contains articles pertaining to the levying of taxes in the cities of the United States, to public purchasing and to trends in municipal finance. The largest part of Section 3 is a compilation of revenue received, expenditures and debts of all cities over 25,000 population.

These charts make it possible for a candidate or a voter to compare Daly City's revenues and expenditures with cities of the same size in California and all other states. Since the data is accurate, it should be used to dispel any incorrect charges and replies.

Among the other titles that are helpful are these: The Citizen's Reference Book by Elizabeth Morriss; Great Cities of the World, Their Government, Politics and Planning by S. L. Swager; The Book of the States; and Joseph N. Kane's American Counties.

COUNTY DOINGS

by JACK WOOD

The County Redistricting Committee is satisfied with the plan it has proposed for realignment of the county's five supervisorial districts.

The plan would give each of the five districts a boundary on the ocean and all but one, the Fourth, a border on the Bay. Size of each district would be more equal than at present. There would be a smaller difference in population. The population of the districts presently range from 8,200 to 160,900. Under the committee's proposal, the range of population would be from 40,995 to 130,196.

The five-member committee, appointed last October by the board of supervisors, made plans to hold its final meeting next month and adopt a map showing the proposed changes at that time.

Highway patrolmen in San Mateo County were pleased last week when overtime pay was approved by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee in Sacramento.

The committee voted $742,000 for a year's overtime at straight-time rates to the present 2,700 highway patrolmen in California. Highway Commissioner Bradford Crittenden has said he can put more officers on the road by paying overtime than by adding 110 officers, and at less cost.

Patrolmen now get compensation time off for hours worked over 40 per week.

Some dozen Pacifica residents would rather trade a proposed underground disaster control center for funds to battle juvenile delinquency.

The former coast artillery bunker of 23 underground rooms was toured recently by councilmen after receiving word from Congressman J. Arthur Younger that the Army had agreed to make it available to the city.

In a petition submitted to councilmen in a study session March 21, the group opposing civilian defense headquarters asserted:

"Our juvenile delinquency rate reflects disaster in many Pacifica homes. How high does the rate have to go before our city council appropriates the money, whether for better policing or increased recreation, to deal with this problem?"

FIRE FACTS

This article is written by Daly City Firemen and is published in this paper for the purpose of keeping the public informed about their fire department, its duties, and associated activities.

Most of us, at one time or another, have gotten into a situation, and we were more concerned, not so much with how we got into it, but, with how to get out of it. This holds true for the average homeowner who has a fire. He doesn't care how it started, but he wants it extinguished and fast.

So, with this thought in mind, let's mention something about home fire alarm systems, and home fire fighting equipment and its effectiveness.

Before we do, though, we would like to say that we do not in any way approve or disapprove home fire alarm systems. Except for the Fire Prevention Officer, most of us know very little about them. If you are interested in the various systems, we recommend you look into them, and if you have any questions our Fire Prevention Officer will be glad to answer them for you.

As far as fighting a fire in your home with a fire extinguisher or graden hose goes, it is strictly up to you. Of course, we would hate to see the population of Daly City become so effective in fighting their own fires that the Fire Department Personnel wind up on the unemployment list.

But, if you do decide to fight the fire, you might remember this: Most fires start small, but, because of delayed discovery and improper early action, they develope into serious problems.

Many fires have been put out with brooms, salt, baking soda and pails of water, but a good many more have gotten away because these makeshift tools were inadequate, or because the person using them became excited.

Smoke and toxic gases are always dangerous. They cause more deaths than the live flames. For your own safety it's best to stay away from any type of smoke or toxic gases.

In general, fire departments handle up to 40 percent of all house fires wtih their first aid appliances. For the homeowner, the cheapest, simplest, and most effective first aid appliance is a garden hose that can reach into any room of the house. And if used properly it could take care of 8 out of 10 dwelling fires that occur in ordinary combustibles. Naturally water isn't recommended for grease, gasoline, or electrical fires. It might not be a bad idea to get a small fire extinguisher and keep it handy in your home or car.

But no matter how confident you feel, don't fight any fire before you call us. We don't mind a run to find the fire extinguished, but we sure would hate to have you call us after you have been fighting the blaze a few minutes and then decide you have a "tiger by the tail."

The first few minutes of any fire is the most important, so you don't have much time to make up your mind one way or the other. And again if you stay and fight it, it is entirely your own responsibility; and if you make any mistakes, the insurance company will replace your home but they won't be able to get you out of the pine box.

It's impossible for us to give you any hard and fast rules to follow. Every fire is different. The reason we bring up home fire fighting is that people have and will fight fires in their homes if possible. It's a natural thing to want to protect your home.

Whatever you do, just make sure you call us before you tackle that fire yourself.

The View From ..Behind The Badge

Written and Edited by Daly City Police Department

Newscast . . .

Paul Harvey is a noted commentator and journalist. On a recent newscast he commented on the death of a policeman. His remarks follow. We believe they will be of interest to the reader.

It was Benjamin Franklin who said: "If men are bad in spite of religion, think what they would be without it."

"I feel somewhat the same about policemen. Though some are bad, what if we had none?"

Officer Nick Klaske was 9 years on the Fon du Lac, Wisconsin, Police Force. One night three young hoodlums from Chicago tried to rob a filling station. Nick tried to arrest them, there was a gunfight. The policeman is dead. He was 37. His widow was expecting their fourth child within a week.

"The D. A. is trying to find a law that will adequately punish the 'night crawlers who did this thing.

"We hear so much to-do whenever the strip the badge of a corrupt cop, but it's not news* for a man to spend his life directing traffic in the rain, or kissing his wife goodbye, without knowing if he will ever see her again.

"It's not news when a decent cop comes home stinking from wrestling with a sick drunk, or when he walks alone into a hostile household to try to stop a wife beater or arrest a knife fighter.

"The cop 'on the make' or 'in on the take' gets roasted over an open fire. But who will bother to salute the thousands of them who do so much more than you and I could ever pay for.

"My daddy was shot to death when I was 3. He was out rabbit hunting with the Chief of Police in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and the hijackers — gunning for the Chief—thought my dad was he.

"So maybe my stubborn reverence for the policeman's uniform dates back to that night before Christmas many lonely years ago.

"In almost three decades on the news beat I've seen men defile that uniform and disgrace it. I've seen the fat hand on the end of the long arm of the law.

"But I've seen others wear that uniform proudly and wear it out running errands for hypocritical citiens who fix fines and blame the cops. And I've seen them staked out in a cesspit waiting for a shoot out with a two time loser who has nothing more to lose—or with a hop head punk who hollers "Juvenile, don't shoot!" as he comes at you with a lead pipe.

"At best, the cop will make an arrest that won't stick.

"So I hear about this thing in Fon du Lac. I remember that Officer Klaske is the second policeman in that one town shot down by hoodlum guns in 3 months. And these will not be the last weeping widows, the last lonely orphans, whom the lawmen leave behind.

"I know, the rotten apples necessarily raise an awful stink. In Chicago, we've had more than our share of stinkers.

"But while we beat our breasts, and wave our arms, and rout these out, maybe we ought to get on our knees and give thanks to the mostly-good men who wait in the dark listening for your cry in the night.

"If, even with such men as these, we are still sick with the crime disease, we would be dead without them."

(Mr. Harvey's words have a Copyright 1962, General Features Corporation, and were reproduced in a recent F.B.I. Law Enforcement Bulletin).

Letters to Editor

Councilman Gives Answer To Smice Letter

Mr. Robert E. Smice,
61 Crestwood Drive,
Daly City, Calif.
Dear Mr. Smice:

Thank you for your timely observations on politics and for the provocative questions on local issues and candidate qualifications you posed in your letter to the editor of this newspaper.

Too often, public concern in government affairs is voiced only as a criticism to the actions and policies that have been left to political governing bodies by default. Your letter expresses the kind of probing interest that every citizen should take in his government. Only through such enlightened interest can your officials reflect in their performance the needs of the people they were elected to serve.

I am seeking re-election to the council, and asking public support because:

(a) I am intimately familiar with the problems Daly City has overcome in gaining its position of prominence in the Bay area and with the many obstacles that remain to be cleared in making it the kind of residential, cultural and commercial center that I think its people would like it to be.

(b) I have served on the city council for 12 eventful years during which the population has more than tripled and the city has undergone a transition from adolescent ribaldry to mature dignity. Participating in shaping the destiny of Daly City has been a rich and rewarding experience and I believe that the knowledge I have gained through successes (as well as mistakes) of the city council will contribute to building an even better community.

(c) As a native and life-long resident of Daly City who has raised a family here, I fully appreciate the importance of keeping our city free of vice and corruption and of providing the kind of surroundings and atmosphere that will inspire our young people to lead useful, healthful lives. As a working man with a life-long association with honest labor, I know first-hand the necessity for keeping government costs at a minimum. As a veteran city councilman, I also know that this cannot be done at the expense of vital public services but must be done through intelligent planning, efficient administration and strict budgetary controls.

If re-elected, I will urge immediate attention be given to:

(a) Plans for a new civic center with centralized facilities that would increase efficiency and improve public service. It would include accommodations for courts and other county services to which Daly City is entitled.

(b) Plans for redeveloping the area west of Mission street. This would revitalize the commercial activity here and bring newal, this project can be ac- the aid of federal funds that are available for urban reneweal, this project can be accomplished by the merchants and property owners at no cost to the city.

On the subject of Charter Form of Government, your City Council's first concern should be: "Will it benefit the people of Daly City?" If studies now under way reveal facts and figures to prove beneficial to the city and its people, a change to Charter Government will certainly have my wholehearted support. Meanwhile, we should continue with efforts to improve the efficiency and to effect new economies within the framework of our present system.

To make a flat statement favoring or opposing annexations as such would be foolish. Each annexation proposal must be accompanied with specific plans for land use. With detailed information, your city council can help decide whether annexation is a benefit or disadvantage to the city. The final decision, based on good and reliable information, must be made by the voters.

I am asking to be re-elected to the City Council because I believe that my background, temperament and experience have qualified me to serve the best interests of the community and I pledge myself to that end.

Respectfully,
EDWARD J. DENNIS,
99 Teresa Street,
Daly City, Calif.

Food For Thought

By the Daly City Ministerial Association

In February, 1958, a hunter stumbled into a police station in northern Japan and mumbled: "I have seen it! I have seen it!"

The man was badly shaken by the shock of what he had seen and the police were unable to discover just what it was that had upset him. An exhaustive search of the area finally flushed from hiding a pathetic, almost ghostly-looking creature, hardly recognizable as a human being. The tragic figure pleaded for mercy from his captors; it was apparent that he was completely overcome with fear.

The story finally revealed that the man was a Chinese, captured by the Japanese during the invasion of China 15 years earlier. Then a young man, he was separated from wife, children and home and imprisoned on the island. There he managed to escape his captors, hiding from them in an underground cavern which he scooped from the earth.

Foraging from the surrounding area while the local people were snowed in, the man survived. Fear, heartache for home, and starvation drove him to an attempted suicide. Frustrated in taking his life, he lived a bare existence as months and years passed.

Two years after his escape, peace had come to his land. The former enemies were now friendly. He was free to return home, but for an additional 13 years he hid in the ground because he did not know that the war was over, that peace had come!

Tragic? Yes, and the story well parallels the tragic condition of multitudes in our land today. They do not know that the war is over between God and man.

Two thousand years ago, God declared peace with man through His Son, Jesus Christ. The Father sent the Son to open the way for men to come to Him in peace. Through Jesus Christ, man can experience escape from the tortures of sin, blessed peace within himself, peace between himself and fellow-men, and most important, peace between himself and God.

What a tragedy that so many live as though the war were still on. Filled with fear and anxiety, they are unable to face life and its challenges, hiding themselves from the face of the One who can help solve all problems and meet eevry need.

The war is over! "Him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out," Jesus invited. He is available to all who will call upon Him.

CHARLES S. JENNINGS,

DC POLITICAL PARADE

Sheldon M. Prezant

Sheldon Prezant, started on his "Walk for Victory," Monday. One neighbor from the Skyline area and another from North Mayfair Avenue asked Mrs. Raymond Daly: "How do we recognie Mr. Prezant?" Mrs. Daly answered, "Look and listen for honesty, intelligence, integrity, dynamic ability, love for his fellow friends and neighbors, and you have recognized Mr. Prezant.

Sheldon Prezent addressing a large gathering of supporters at his home, plunged into the problem or "Youth Guidance" in our community. "If we expect our children to pursue the "American Heritage" and to love their fellowmen, we must set an example in our DAILY LIVING, in our CHURCH, and in our local GOVERNMENT. The image we create today will be the reflection in the mirror of the American Youngsters, who within a few years will be seeking government offices and other leadership positions in all fields of endeavors."

Prezant further stated, "In our land of freedom I have the right to run for office. If the American Public has confidence in my qualifications and abilities, through our privilege of choice, I can be elected as your representative. This system of ours, this birth of a tradition, of a heritage, which gives me the opportunity of starting with nothing and building a better, more secure place for my family and for your family is the "American Heritage" which I seek to preserve for my children and your children."

Prezant, at another group, discussed the political race. "Other candidates will tell you how wonderful they are, or blast their opponents with unkind words. They will promise you: tax reform, recreation, transportation, no annexation, better education, and anything else that sounds good. There is but one real issue in this election. Will you, Miss, Mr. and Mrs. America vote for the man you believe in, the man you trust, the man who is best qualified, the man who is willing to learn, the man that will be YOUR representative?"

Sheldon Prezant will continue his "Walk for Victory" and distribute his brochure throughout Daly City. Look and listen for Prezant, you will recognize him.

Robert St. Clair

Mayor Robert B. St. Clair has rejected an attempt by the Citizens Committee for Good Government to make school taxes an issue in the city council campaign.

St. Clair said the "absurd effort at confusion" was made in a letter written by H. W. Dickow on CCFGG stationery.

The letter suggested that St. Clair debate the subject with Thomas F. Noonan, Jefferson Elementary School District trustee and CCFGG council candidate.

The mayor said the letter was dated March 16, 1962, and that he received it on March 19.

"The suggestion of a debate on the 'controversial issue of School Taxes vs. City Council Jurisdiction' is as inappropriate as a debate on the subject of 'Federal Income Taxes vs. City Council Jurisdiction'," St. Clair wrote in reply.

"If your candidate is indeed serious, the correct forum for such discussion is before the Legislature of the State of California.

"More astonishing, however, is the fact that the proponent of the debate is a School Trustee who should know this already.

"The election is barely three weeks from the receipt of your letter, yet you infer that the CCFGG committed to the election of the proponent, will nonetheless supervise and moderate the debate, select the time and place, and publicize same; and all on an undebatable subject.

"The whole matter is an absurdity, designed to confuse, conjured up as a last-minute device, and hence is rejected."

Edward P. O'Haire

During the past week I have had the pleasure of meeting many residents of Daly City at informal gatherings in their homes, and I am impressed with the phenomenal interest shown in the issues of government by City Charter. The voters apparently did not seem to realize that a Charter government can be made to operate just as effectively in a small community as in a large metropolitan area. It is actually a tax-saving method of civic administration, and it gives the voters the right to run city government along the lines of their choice, rather than by the edicts of a political machine.

In fact, such a form of government has sounded the death-knell to boss-rule and political chicanery. Large cities like San Francisco, and smaller cities like San Mateo, have functioned successfully and economically under Charter rule. We can profit from all of the earlier experiences of large and small communities, and give Daly City the kind of government which will open new horizons of growth and prosperity.

The platform of Noonan-O'Haire-Walker also includes the assessment of a special annexation fee of from $500 to $1 000.-00 per lot in order to defray the monumental cost of proper and necessary services for the new population. Our "Pay-As-You-Enter" slogan has been acclaimed widely by all citizens who have felt the sting of run-away taxation. I solicit your support at the polls in order to bring the very best kind of government to our city.

Fred J. Walker

There has been so much ado about the ownership of Citizens' Committee For Good Government and its newspaper Citizen-Defender that I nasten to clear-up the two most controversial points: (1) These titles were registered in my name only because no other member of the Committee agreed to assume the risk of possible lawsuits or other obligations. (2) It is common daily practice for all non-profit organizations to register their titles in the names of an individuals, because this is by far the least expensive way. The members of the Committee requested me to accept the responsibility of assuming these risks. Now I am the target of attack by eight former members who are opposing more than 7,500 voters who supported me in the peoples' victory over the Callan annexation.

By far, the most senseless statement revolving around the ownership of Citizens' Committee For Good Government and its Citizen-Defender is that I have seized it to spread untruths and sew (sic) distrust; that it is the personel property of one man. I am now, and always have been, willing to release the name Citizens' Committee for Goor Governmen and Citizen-Defender to any individual upon majority vote of the Committee, This has never been asked.

George Kirchhubel

A great deal of emphasis has been stressed as to the amount of monies we have spent on parks and playgrounds. To say we are getting the most for our money in this field is questionable.

Playgrounds do provide an area of enjoyment to the younger group of children. The major problem, however, is in the older group.

Parks that are costly to purchase and maintain provide a limited service. First, they are designed for boys, with baseball or football as their main function. Honestly, after you have a few teams, just how much of this problem has been covered? The use of parks is confined to certain hours of daylight, during vacation time, after school and on weekends. In the rainy season they are valuesless.

In my years of experience in the entertainment field, I find that as the youngsters grow older, they desire more social activities. Having employed many bands that played modern swing music, I've found that these youngsters have always posed a problem. What they want we shy away from.

I feel that recreation programs have not been active enough concerning the main problem — that of social entertainment.

I believe that we adults should take another look at ourselves.

We should delegate authority to these young people to organize and run their social functions under supervision that will give them a feeling of importance.

So far, our record is not too impressive.

Paris B. Simmons

The Vote-for-Paris in April Campaign Hheadquarters were elated and delighted to read the statements of one candidate in the Marchbanks Publications last week. This candidate stated that the council needed a specialist in education. Since Paris B. Simmons is the only educational specialist on the ballot, it appears to be an outright endorsement of his candidacy, though it is obvious that it was not intended to appear in this manner.

A member of the Board of Trustees is generally not a specialist in education, even though he may have spent four or five years on the board. Members of the Board are considered laymen, for they do not possess the educational training, credentials, including that of administrator, that the professional educator or administrator must hold to carry on his employment.

Paris B. Simmons holds both teaching credentials and administrative credentials granted by the State of California, which qualifies him for the highest position in this school district. He has attended school (college) not for four or five years, but continually for the past 15 years, for the purpose of increasing his proficiency and becoming a specialist in education. No other candidate may claim he is a specialist in education, unless he has a similar background.

He is known as a dedicated teacher. He is held in esteem by his co-workers, to the extent that the Jefferson Elementary Classroom Teacher Association has endorsed his candidacy for council. A high honor, for this organization has never endorsed any candidate before.

He has served as PTA president, historian, and in a wide variety of chairmanships during his career as a teacher. His motto has always been, "The children come first," in opposition to any selfish interest. He is the only candidate that does not stand to benefit personally from election to the council. He will continue his position as teacher of this district while in office. Last year he received 34 offers of administrative positions, but accepted none, because of his satisfaction and devotion to Daly City.

The supporters of Paris B. Simmons point out that there is now a concentrated effort on the part of his opponents to obtain the vote of the women of Daly City. No other candidate has shown the respect and confidence that has been given by our candidate, to the women of Daly City. He is the only one to publicly announce his selection of a woman to head his campaign committee: Gert Green, and states continually that his choice of this mother and civic leader is the best example possible of the high esteem for the intelligence and regard, he has, for the woman voter.

Thomas F. Noonan

I regret that the mayor has not seen fit to accept my invitation to debate the controversial school-tax issue. I will therefore be happy to appear before any group—large or small—to discuss this all-important issue with the voters. Merely telephone my home, PLaza 6-0726, and let me know when you would like to have me appear before your group. And if you want one or both of my running-mates, Ed O'Haire and Fred Walker, to be present, I ask only that you give us a few days' notice because we will be operating on a tight schedule during the closing days of the campaign.

So much publicity has been given the school-tax issue that people everywhere are viewing it in an entirely new light and from every angle. It is unquestionably the most vital problem in the lives and future well-being of all taxpayers in Daly City. I can answer any questions you may ask, for I have made our schools my first order of business ever since I located in this city, and I feel certain that I can clear-up much of the confusion which revolves around this everpresent problem. I am Trustee for the Jefferson Elementary School District and I devote the major portion of my spare time to education, recreation, rehabilitation and the general welfare of our mothers and children.

I am a candidate for city councilman for the first time, and I was persuaded to accept the nomination by several thousand voters who were responsible for my election as Trustee to the school board. Together with the election of my running-mates, O'Haire and Walker, a complete reversal of the balance-of-power in city council can be achieved. But all three candidates will be needed upon the council so that their three combined votes will constitute a majority.

Edward J. Dennis

Lowell E. Durham, president of the Hillside Improvement Association and chairman of the city-wide committee for the re-election of Councilman Edward J. Dennis, called upon Daly City voters to "examine carefully the vague promises being thrown around with reckless abandon and compare them with the record of performance of the incumbent."

Durham called special attention to the subject of taxes, warning that this is an area requiring sober and thoughtful consideration based on factual information.

"It should be emphasized," Durham pointed out, "that Daly City's basic tax rate of $1.48 (per $100 of assessed valuation) is as low as is consistent with sound business practice and is actually one of the lowest for a city of comparable size in all of California.

"The $1.48 represents only 16 per cent of a home-owner's total tax bill. The largest portion of the total tax bill is imposed by other jurisdictions (county, school districts, special districts) over which the city council has absolutely no control.

"The people of Daly City should realize that the local (city) taxes provide funds for the services that all of us need and enjoy: parks, recreation, police and fire protection, a good and inexpensive water system, streets and improvements, a modern library system and sanitary services and safeguards."

Durham pointed out that Dennis' record of public service, including 12 years on the city council, bear out the fact that he has worked effectively to hold the line on local taxes, and at he same time insisting upon maximum value and service to the homeowner for his tax dollar.

"On the one hand, we have loose promises being made in order to catch votes," Durham said. "On the other, we have a Eddie Dennis' record of performance, to show his genuine interest in governmental economy.

Candidates Night Set In South S. F.

The Italian American Citizens Club will sponsor a Candidates Night on Friday, March 30, at the Fraternal Hall, 415 Grand avenue, South San Francisco. This special meeting will be opened at 8 p.m. and all candidates for the city council are invited to attend.

This important meeting was specifically called to enable the members of our club to hear the views of the candidates, their stands on various problems confronting South San Francisco, and to judge who they think could best serve the people of this community.

This election, as any election, is of great importance. In that spirit, the Italian American Citizens Club has decided to hold this special meeting, which will be open to the public. Therefore, you, as citizens, are cordially invited to attend.

After the meeting there will be refreshments.

Micheal DeBernardi

Councilman Micheal DeBernardi this week said he was disappointed at the lack of knowledge displayed by some city council candidates who are confusing the voters.

DeBernardi referred specifically to statements about the current form of government used in Daly City. "This subject has become a convenient political football," the veteran councilman said. He went on to explain that there is plenty of room for debate on the merits of "Charter vs. General Law" system for municipalities, and that "as a matter of fact, a new study of this matter is now being made to determine whether a change to charter form would benefit Daly City and its people."

"However, for a council candidate to campaign on the promise of installing the charter system without the benefit of all the latest information is to foolish. What is expert advisors, following careful study, reported that Daly City was in fact operating efficiently with its present system and that a change-over to charter form would not be justified."

"The present city council is not opposed to charter form of government, but before a change from the present system is recommended we want to know what the benefits to the city will be. In other words, we will look before we leap."

DeBernardi was particularly concerned about the claim by one of the candidates—a professional educator — that the current form of government in Daly City has no check and balance system.

"To put the record straight," he emphasized, "Daly City operates under a council-manager form of government which is in operation in more than 1,800 cities throughout the United States and Canada.

"Under this system, the voters elect the council (board of directors) as their representatives to legislate and form policies relating to city business. A qualified professional administrator or manager is hired to carry out these policies and coordinate all services for which the city is responsible.

"The same procedure is followed in the administration of our school districts. Here, just as in city government, voters elect a governing board (trustees) who in turn hire a professional administrator or superintendent to conduct and coordinate all the school services.

"The qualifications for the administrator in both cases are almost identical except that a city manager does not work under contract!

"This has been the most reliable and respected form of government, and it may operate under the general laws (as in Daly City) of the state or under a local charter. The checks and balances are there and they operate every day in the operation of our city's business."

Child Saved From The Surf

A three-year-old South San Francisco boy met St. Peter on Sunday, March 25, but didn't die.

Stephen W. Wertheiner, 3, of 831 Newman, South San Francisco, was caught in the surf off Ocean boulevard in Sharp Park at 1:30 p.m. when a high wave washed him out as he was sitting in the sand.

His parents tried, but failed to recover him. Heroine of the day was 16-year-old Sandra St. Peter, of 2440 Rollingwood drive, San Bruno, who pulled the child to safety after several attempts.

The boy was hospitalized at Kaiser Hospital.

Harry R. Farber

At a special meeting held this past week and attended by over 200 ardent supporters and friends, Harry R. Farber closed his remarks by stating in no uncertain terms — I repeat again to each of you in this audience—"I am an Independant Candidate," and if elected to our Council I can unhesitatingly say to the people of Daly City—"I am a free man who is not owned nor can be dictated to by anyone or any power group, and as such, I will be free to act to the best of my ability in the full interests of the taxpayer at all times."

As this campaign approaches the home stretch we are all getting bombarded from both teams of three — each taking pot shots at the other side-Arguing, Defending and Condemning each other. In my humble opinion, aside from confusing the voters, they are doing all they can to lower the dignity of the office they seek.

I am proud to say to all the people of Daly City, my campaign has and will continue to be conducted with the honor and dignity that befits the office. I have refrained from these tactics because I sincerely feel the voters are intelligent people, who can read between the lines and won't let themselves be mislead or fooled.

My many supporters again appeal to every citizen's pride and responsibility as voters, and implore each of you to seriously consider the danger of electing any majority block into office.

I have been asked by hundreds of people to repeat my platform, so once again I openly submit it to the voter's, point by point, for their approval:

1—It is time we give the people of Daly City an opportunity to help make some of the decisions that will effect their tax dollar.

2—We must make every effort to hold the line on taxes and curtail all unnessary expenditures in ALL city departments.

3—We must "once and for all" eliminate all free ride annexations.

4—We must insist on a closer bond between Council and School Boards for the best interest of our youth.

5—We must make a concerted effort to have adequate recreational facilities, located centrally in all districts of the city, for use both day and nite for our children.

6—We must make a sincere effort to give our city adequate transportation.

—We must explore every possibility of inviting commerce and industry into our city to help share the ever growing tax burden.

8—We must make sure our city employees, in all departments, are given the rights and opportunity they are justly entitled to have.

Good Soil Makes The Difference

It could be stated unequivocally that no factor plays so large a part in the success or failure of a garden venture as the soil in which you grow things. And it is equally true that most gardeners pay little attention to their soil, leaving to chance an answer to the all-important question of how good it is.

In the early years of a new garden, the chances are good that you can get away with such malpractice. For most soils — except the obviously rocky or sandy one—have nutrients enough to support good growth. But as your garden depletes those nutrients you had best start putting some of them back.

Aside from depleted soil, the gardener is often faced with two other conditions: His soil is valueless to start with (i.e. lacking in topsoil or too sandy to hold nutrients) or his soil is so compacted that it will not yield up the nutrients it holds. His need in any of the above instances is to embark on a soil improvement program.

The surface layer of soil in which plants grow is konwn as topsoil—a combination of decayed organic matter and decomposed rocks. And if success is desired in gardening, this top layer must be kept in good shape. The California Association of Nurserymen is adamant on this point.

The all important need in this top layer is humus—the great healer — which makes compacted soils lighter and sandy soils heavier. Manure is a form of humus, so is peat moss and leaf mold and compost. These ingredients should be worked into bad and good soil alike, for if they correct the one, they keep the other in good shape.

The newer chemical soil conditioners for the most part are one form or another of decomposed rock, which with the humus will keep your soil workable.

It occasionally becomes necessary to correct the acid or alkaline balance of a soil, but this should not be done until you have your soil analyzed. Seek a nurseryman's help here and don't just plunge right into an imagined problem. You could be wrong.

Charter Change Considered By Supervisors

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors has appointed a committee of five to review the charter of San Mateo County and suggest areas in need of revision and the methods of revising.

Supervisor James Fitzgerald said last week that the group is to report to the supervisors during the next few weeks, and that it is then the intention of the board to call a freeholders election. The freeholders then will review the entire charter.

The supervisors have consulted District Attorney Keith Sorenson as to the number of freeholders that would come before county voters for election. It probably will be between 19 and 21. If all goes as is tentatively scheduled, a freeholder election would be called in November.

The proposed revision that has received the most attention concerns supervisorial districts. The county is presently divided into five districts, and Article I of the charter states that the district shall remain " . . as they are now unless and until otherwise changed as provided by general law."

The San Mateo County Democratic Council has sponsored an amendment to the charter that would call for a mandatory readjustment of district boundaries after each decennial Federal census so that no district contains less than 17 per cent of the total county population.

For the past three or four years a siltation problem on the Sacramento river, north of Shasta Lake, has produced dead trout due to the almost complete job of covering the spawning beds with mud. As a matter of fact, due to recent diversion of water into Big Springs Creek and subsequently into the Mount Shasta fish hatchery, 33,000 fingerling trout and other fish have been killed.

Unions Stand Pat In Grave Digging Strike

The gravediggers' strike at the Colma cemeteries went into the 21st day today as AFL-CIO union members stood pat on wage demands of 80 to 90 cents per hour raises.

Offers to arbitrate have been rejected, said Cemetery Association spokesman John Cantwell.

Both sides have been unable to engineer any bargaining and union members are holding their original position of Jan. 1. They are asking raises from $105 to $131 per week.

Three cash offers have been rejected, according to Cantwell and the unions have offered no counter proposals "of any kind," he said.

"I've run out of ideas at this juncture," declared Cantwell. It is a situation," he stated, where the union has presented the Cemetery Association with a "deadlock."

Cantwell said that a union representative apparently "intends to keep the strike going as long as possible."

THREE FOR THE ROAD

There are three things that should be in the glove compartment or trunk of every car, says the California State Automobile Association. A flashlight, some flares and a clean rag. The flashlight or the flares may save your life in an emergency. The rag is handy for a lot of things, such as wiping your hands after changing a flat tire.

It's Time To Plant; Watch Out For Snails

Now that spring is officially here and frost has officially left the ground, Daly City gardeners must groom their fuchsias, plant their bulbs and watch out for snails.

That's the word from Joseph Kusber, 60 Werner street, president of the American Fuchsia Society.

Kusber works in the display rack manufacturing business at his home, but his avocation is gardening. His home is attractively partitioned into several gardens, that contain greenhouses, fish pond, tall ferns and waterfall.

Now it's time, he said, for planting bulbs and pansies, snapdraggons, Jelly Stalks and Phlox.

Other information on planting:

1. Roses are to be fed (cow manure). They were planted two months ago. "You'll have beautiful roses in May."

2. Fuchsias at the present time are being groomed and will bloom in the month of July for exhibition and show purposes.

3. Begonias should be put in starting beds.

"All my plants come to life in the spring," said Kusber, and "in July, all my pots are one mass of color."

The heavy rainfall this year was a godsend, he said, because "the nitrogen that rain deposits on plants is terrific. Man can't replace it with flouridated water. The more rain the better the plants freshen up.

Bay area weather is good, he added, because gardeners can grow most of all types of plants, as seen in the San Francisco S. P. gardens.

Going on with his advice, he stated that "later in the year gardeners must spray against insects and watch for snails."

"Snails can go through a bed of young plants and cut them right out."

This is the hard shell snail. Slugs, a slow moving, slimy creature, can also do fearful damage.

To eliminate snails you use snail bait.

Earwigs can also become a problem.

But Daly City residents are fortunate, said Kusber, because they never let earwigs get started.

Earwigs are black bugs of Japanese desecent that munch on plants. They flourish during dry periods. In Marin County, residents even hunt them.

According to Kusber earwigs look like an overgrown ant with pinchers in the back. And, he said, they can be stopped by proper spraying.

On the subject of plants he added that ferns go with fuchsias. Ferns require a damp atmosphere. Fuchsia is a leaf breather, drawing its moisture through the leaf, where most plants take it through the root. Fuchsias can be fed by spraying them. Because of climatic conditions, Maidenfern is grown in Daly City greenhouses. The heat can be controlled, since it never gets too hot in this area, Kuber said. Also grown are orchids and carnations.

Airman Assigned To Tech Training Course

Airman Basic Robert F. Sievert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Sievert of 942 Brunswick street, Daly City, is being assigned to the United States Air Force technical training course for air armament mechanics at Lowry AFB, Colorado.

Airman Sievert, who has completed his basic military training at Lackland AFB in Texas, was selected for the advanced course on the basis of his interests and aptitudes.

The airman is a 1961 graduate of Jefferson Union High School in Daly City.

FUCHSIAS ARE LABELED FOR SHOW, COMPETITION BY JOE KUSBER

JAPANESE MAPLES; TREES OF DISTINCTION

name the most attractive small tree in the general nursery trade, you could make a good case for the Japanese Maples. At least it would be very hard to find others more attractive.

Whether grown as bonsai dwarfs, as container trees or as full size specimens, Japanese Maples are all the gardener could ask. Their delicately cut leaves, modest size and attractive fall coloring are all plus factors. And even if the fall color does not reach its potential, as often happens in even-temperature coastal gardens, you cannot really find fault with this handsome tree.

Members of the California Association of Nurserymen offer several Japanese Maples which the gardener should acquaint himself with. Commonest of them is the standard green leaf variety which so often fills the need of a small patio tree. Its leaves are deeply cut in some specimens, not so deeply cut in others. Choose them when they are in leaf if you are particular about this. This is the Japanese Maple which often blazes with color in fall gardens.

Another is the Bloodleaf Maple, a tree of startling red-purple color from the time it breaks its winter rest until the leaves drop in fall. Still another is the lovely Laceleaf Maple, whose red leaves are so finely cut you might think them shredded if they weren't so delicately patterned.

All the Japanese Maples submit to dwarfing and are excellent tubbed specimens on the deck. Laceleaf Maple, however, is a natural dwarf, doing most of its growing horizontally. It is excellent on the margin of a pool, where part of it is trained to hang out over the water. A more beautiful sight you couldn't ask for.

These Japanese Maples are not heat lovers and in the warmer sections of California are best grown in the filtered shade of taller trees or on the north side of a house away from the sun's hottest rays. They are relatively resistant to draught but when grown in tubs extra care should be taken to prevent their drying out. An unwanted drying will force the tree into dormancy and might even kill it back.

Daly City — A City With A Heart . . .

THE STORY IS TOLD IN THESE LETTERS

Mrs. John Boghosian
9 Westlake Dr.
Daly City, Calif.

March 16, 1962

Mayor Robert B. St. Clair
City Hall
Daly city, California

Dear Mayor:

As a Westlake Terrace homeowner, I want to express appreciation for the splendid cooperation that you and the city council extended to our group in taking action to obtain playground facilities for our children.

We were pleased, not only with the helpful manner in which you met with our committee, but the prompt and decisive way you were able to work with the developer in obtaining title to the proposed playground property.

It is our understanding that the property, which has now been deeded to the city for playground purposes, was obtained free of charge to the taxpayers, and that the modest expense of preparing the land for its use will not cause any appreciable delay. City Manager Edward Frank has informed us that the playground should be available to the children before the end of summer.

Your sincere efforts and effective action on our behalf in obtaining the property and getting this important project under way is an excellent demonstration of good relations between City Hall and the Daly City homeowner.

Respectfully,
Mrs. John Boghosian

March 18, 1962

Dear Mayor:

I should like to publicly express my feelings of thanks, admiration and appreciation for the teamwork of Daly City individuals responsible for saving the life of my daughter, Teresa, on March 17.

Teresa, barely two weeks old, was choking to her near death. A call was placed to our City Hall, where the operator instantly dispatched a rescue team. Members of Daly City's first class Fire Department arrived within less than three minutes with necessary equipment to revive the baby, who had turned blue despite efforts of my wife and mother. Mercy Ambulance service on the direction of Dr. R. Gobar rushed the baby to St. Luke's Hospital with the escort of Daly City's on the job Police Department.

No amount of praise, public or personal, can describe the utter efficiency of these fine people.

Thank you,
Michael Lynn Cinti

UNREST IS WITNESSED IN MANAGUA

The general unrest witnessed by this writer in Managua, Nicaragua, may be further illustrated by the relating of several experiences that occurred during his visit to this nation.

When a visit was paid to a top education official, the official requested that the writer co-operate with the government by giving all news stories (as were desired in connection with the educational expedition) to the paper that endorsed the Somoza dictatorship.

Meeting Suggested

A conference with the editor of the paper endorsing the curply educational information to rent government, was most interesting. An interpreter was necessary, and this person turned out to be a reporter who was employed by a national news service, and fed information to both papers, government and opposition. Because of the inability of the editor to communicate in English, the reporter was most open in his remarks, and urged the teachers to visit the opposite paper. He even suggested setting up a meeting of students and citizens that would discuss the dictatorship for the benefit of the visiting teachers.

It was very difficult not to accept this invitation, but it had to be refused, since it could have led to incidents which might well force the expulsion of the teachers from Nicaragua, and cause an international incident.

Visiting the educational service division of the United States government in Nicaragua, a lengthy interview was held with a U. S. advisor, who was just ending a tour of duty and was most open in her comments about the handicaps encountered in her job of attempting to improve the educational standards of the country. She pointed to the fact that she was supposed to supthe schools of the nation, but only had an inadequate duplicator at her disposal. She mentioned that the money intended for the educational program seemed to go into the wrong pockets, and indicated such money very rarely contributed to the program. This was not an inference against U.S. employees, but rather an indication towards graft and misappropriation of funds that occurs in a dictatorship.

There is only a single text for the teaching of reading to the youth of the nation. This same text is also used for the teaching of adults. The writer was presented with a copy, and after careful evaluation and translation, states that it can only be classified as most inadequate.

Religious Fiesta

During the week stay in Managua, a religious fiesta was held that had previously resulted in fights, brawls, intoxication, and very freqeuntly several deaths. The fiesta was banned by the church, but evidently encouraged by the government. The fiesta did take place, but it was very subdued, without the usual participation.

The teachers were invited to visit and enjoy the fiesta, but a local citizen advised them not to take their scooters, as the novelty of them might be too much of a temptation for the natives that had over-indulged. As in all the travels, the scooters were a great point of interest for the natives.

The pension where the group stayed was pust a few doors from a primary school. Passing by, one would see children in neat blue and white uniforms. (All school children, public and private, wear uniforms to school.) The children sitting closely together on chair-type desks, busy at work at their lessons. Just a block away one will see many children, in ragged and unkempt clothing, carrying heavy loads of produce to the market area, or hawking various items of merchandise.

Natives Are Hospitable

As is all Central American Republics, the people themselves are most cordial and hospitable. They displayed continually a warmth and hospitality towards the North Americans. The feeling of national pride, however, is not evident as it is in other Central American Republics.

One of the expedition members was photographing the United States embassy in Managua and was stopped by the military, who said such photographing was illegal since the area was under martial law. the embassy was very closely situated by the castle-like residence of the mother of the current dictator. Her residence and self was being protected by national armed forces because there had been several attempts made to insure her joining her husband, who was shot to death, just prior to the time the Somoza brothers took over the government.

The magnificence of her residence deeply contrasts with the squalor and poverty seen in nearby villages, or for that matter in Managua, itself.

As United States teachers, our hearts went out to the young children who have very little to look forward to for the remainder of their existence under such a dictatorship. They will face starvation, hard labor and a terrible struggle just to survive. Under such problems of living as they face, their efforts must only be considered brave—no, heroic.

ATTORNEY GENERAL TALKS ON JUVENILE ALCOHOLISM

Alcoholism is the greatest contributor to California's juvenile delinquent population, declared Attorney General Stanley Mosk in an address to the State Juvenile Officers Association in convention at Fresno.

"As officers in charge of our dangerous juvenile problem, the members of this organization know there are many reasons for juvenile violence," said Mosk.

"More juvenile crimes have been committed under the direct or indirect influence of alcohol than by any other antisocial influence. A member of the Youth Authority, Emmet Daly, informs me that 85 per cent of the juveniles under the Authority's jurisdiction got their start from drunkenness.

"Homes broken by alcoholism, homes in which drinking to excess has been a social grace, and bad companions in search of adventure on the outside, have contributed to the delinquency of these minors.

"Under the influence of alcoholic beverages, the youngsters, some from the best families, have thrown care to the wind.

"As a result, crimes of assault, car thefts, burglary and robbery have followed, which have been traced to drinking parties. Reckless abandon is brought on by a six-pack of beer or stronger stimulants.

"Even the most careful of parents of this minority of youngsters find their young folks have succumbed to the challenge of 'don't be chicken.'

"Our various information media should be brought into this work of solving the problem. Many of these media, newspapers, magazines, radio and television, have devoted space to information on the juvenile problem. The sports pages have given our youngsters fine examples of athletes who live by a code of spartan conditioning.

"The encouragement of the Little League, Babe Ruth League in baseball, the Warner League in football, and various tournaments in golf and tennis and amateur boxing have the finest programs of keeping fit.

"We have a new type of splendid example in John Glenn and his fellow astronauts, as we have had in our heroic contributions from our Army, Navy, Marine and Air Corps, which have been televised.

"Yet there are some departures from the norm in some of our television programs.

"We can go all out for the contribution of television in the story it gave the world on John Glenn's orbiting the earth three times, and the tip-top condition he had to be in that as good a job is done by fiction writers of a few TV shows. The marshal who runs his law enforcement activities from a saloon where he joins with a prairie flower isn't a sterling example of enforcement. The good guys and the bad guys of these fictional presentations make drinking as American as the hot dog. These events probably do not influence an adult, but they become normal behaviour to the impressionable youthful mind.

"Understating the alcoholic problem and overstating the narcotics problem doesn't add up to an intelligent understanding of either.

"Emphasis should be placed on the evils of alcoholic beverages to our young people. It is bad enough among the adults, but it is worse to have easily-obtainable alcoholic beverages set our juveniles on a path of crime and anti-social behavior."

Redfield To Head Business Group

Announcement of the appointment of Robert C. Redfield of Western Irrigation, at 178 School street as chairman of the Daly City Chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business, was made by Edward M. Newman, District Manager of the Federation in this area.

Each business and professional man member of this organization maintains a voting membership, and is polled by ballots regularly throughout the year on bills and issues that affect independent enterprise at the national state levels.

In an effort to do everything possible to maintain the American way of life, and keep our free competitive sytem of business, the businessmen express their own personal opinion on the ballots each month and turn them over to Redfield, who makes tabulations of the total number and the manner in which they voted.

These tabulations are sent, with the underlying signed ballots, directly to the desk of Congressman J. Arthur Younger, at Washington, D.C., and to State Senator Richard Dollwig. They are the only means whereby independent business and professional people can keep in continuing, organized, personal, direct contact with their national and state legislators on measures that affect, locally and nationally, free enterprise opportunities.

(4) Defense and space exploration has developed new horizons.

(5) Service occupations have continued to expand in number and in type, therefore.

(6) These new developments have greatly increased the problems that education must meet.

(7) Careful planning of the curriculum and the testing and guidance program is our greatest hope.

ARRESTS FOR SPEEDING

Rams Trail On Cinders

Tracksters of Westmoor were on their knees last week at the hands of Serra High in the first practice dual track meet of the year. Serra, located in San Mateo, cleaned up in the higher divisions with only the Ram C team stopping the Padres from taking all honors.

The Varsity lost 67 to 46. Highlighting the Ram attack was pole vaulter Dusty Chase, who broke a school record in the PL relays, did it again with a vault of 13 feet 2 inches. He broke the Westmoor record of 12 feet 7¾ inches by 6¾ inches. The vaultist is considered to be one of the best in Northern California.

Other Varsity point winners were Roy Pinelli, who took second place in the 100 and 150 yard dashes; Dennis Tracy, who took first in the 880.

Members of the B squad were even less fortunate as they were swamped, 76 to 33. Taking first place in the high hurdles was Jack Larson. Jack also earned points by taking second in the low hurdles. Crosscountrymen Mark Clark and Tom Slavin took first and second places, respectively, in the 660 yard run. Clark came in with a time of 1:11.1. Putting the shot for Westmoor was Mike Morrison, who took second place in his event. Showing for Westmoor in the distance run was Tob Dooley, who hit the line in second place on the 1320 run. Frank Bellante took the third spot in the 330.

Led by Mike McCarthy, the C team held the Padres from total victory.

McCarthy took first place in three events — the 75 and 150 yard dashes, and the running broad jump. Two other firsts taken by the C's were in the 330 by Ralph Hawkins, and the 660 by William Aguilar in 1:36.

First Western Bank Improves Phone Service

Westlake's branch of the First Western Bank announced last week the expansion of phone service to accommodate the bank's growing capacity.

Bank manager Ted Harris said that the new facilities will enable calls from outside to be received faster, with almost no delay. The four former trunk lines running outside the bank have been expanded to ten.

Harris said that the phone company at the bank's request put a count on the number of busy signals customers received when calling the bank. The count showed so many that the decision was made to install the new facilities.

Calls made to the Westlake branch will now go through the main branch in San Francisco, and immediately be routed to Daly City. Because of this, Westlake First Western will have a YUkon frequency instead of the more familiar PLaza.

Folk Dancers Set Festival

The folk dance festival scheduled for the Sunday after Easter, April 29, at the Daly City War Memorial Community Center is arousing considerable interest, not only among folk dancers, but from those who would like to learn.

Folk dance classes are held every Friday (no class on Good Friday). Starting promptly at 7:30 p. m., a special class is held to accommodate beginners. For one hour there is a continual review of fundamentals and reteaching of folk dances. This means that anyone interested may start at any time by coming to the early class until they are ready to join the group of more experienced folk dances later the same evening.

Why not start now? Try it for ten weeks, which is about the time required to learn folk dance basics and a number of favorite folk dances.

For information, call Elsie Maclaren at PLaza 5-0065 evenings.

There are 90 million drivers operating 76 million motor vehicles in the United States today, reports the National Automobile Club.

News From The Schools

Fernando Rivera School

Saludos amigos! Welcome to Mexico!

When one opens the door to room 6 at Fernando Rivera School, one sees a Mexico in miniature and hubbub of activity. The children are planning a fiesta as a culmination of their study of Mexico.

Gay music fills the air and over in one corner of the room students are dancing La Raspa. Others keep time to the lively rhythm with instruments. We can't understand the words they sing and we realize it's because Mexicans speak Spanish and the children are singing in that language. One boy marks the beat with a Mexican-made drum. Two girls handle maracas like natives. Two others chime in with the triangle and cymbals at just the right moment.

In the opposite corner of the room what was once a cardboard box serves as a very fine puppet stage. Now, however, it is painted in gay colors and is complete with curtains and scenery to set the mood of Old Mexico. A play written by one of the students is in progress. The committee admits it was a hard job to select two plays from the 30 which were submitted. If we are very quiet, we can hear one of the small puppets speaking in a very Spanish-American accent. The puppets, too, were made by the children although parents helped make the serapes, sombreros and other colorful clothing.

One student, a member of the invitation committee, is leaving the classroom to distribute four invitations, one to each of the other sixth grades who are also studying Mexico. One representative from each room will be our guest at our fiesta and will share his experiences with his class. Invitations are also being sent to the other classes to visit our displays the day before the fiesta. The parents will visit us the day after the fiesta for a repeat performance.

At the bulletin board, three students are building a city with yard so that a Mexican skyline is visible as a background for the other activities. In yarn is written "Saludos Amigos! Welcome to Mexico! On the other bulletin board there is a Mexican maid with braided yarn hair, a white blouse and a colorful skirt. The blouse and skirt came from Mexico.

As we let our eyes wander around the room, we see tiny Mexican scenes in shoe boxes. The children made dioramas in their art class. On a table are elaborate notebooks compiled by each student on all phases of Mexican life. These are complete with title page, table of contents, bibliography, reports, pictures and an evaluation by the student of the project. Other displays include Mexican leather work, pottery, and jewelry. There will be some heated bargaining at the fiesta.

No fiesta would be complete without a pinata. The pinata is a toy animal which is filled with goodies and hung from the ceiling. (Ours is a stubborn Mexican donkey made of paper mache.) A child is blindfolded, given a stick, turned around, and then permitted to swing at the pinata. The children scramble for the goodies as they fall to the floor.

Here is the recipe for one taco: ½ lb. hamburger, ½ T. garlic salt, ½ can tomato sauce, garnished with 1/10 head lettuce, 1/6 lb .cheese. Can you figure out a recipe for 40 people? We can and did. We also figured how much food each person sh bring so that we all spent same amount of money. Vhought it was hard at first, I now we are ready to tackle banquet for 100.

We wi a chance to prove how we've can cook, too. Each mber of the food committ in charge of cooking a pa of the taco. One is making sauce, one frying the tort, one slicing the onions (one wanted that job), one grating the cheese, etc.

We th learning is fun. We like beiactive so things are always etty busy in our room. Tre's so much to do! And if y think we're having too muc fun, just check back and yo find that every school oject is included in planninia fiesta. Learning should fun because we always do etter in things we like. Do you agree? We can't wait for ur fiest!

(The sta will be held on Wednesd, March 28.)

PAID POLITICAL PAID POLITICAL

AN OPEN LETTER TO CIT COUNCIL CANDIDATES

This letter is directed to the tree candidates, whoever they may be, who are successful in winning Daly City council seats a the April 10 election.

It is my fervent hope that th ultimate winners will see fit to again revitalize Daly City's recreation facilities, which have gone virtually neglected for the past 10 years. This is not to imply any criticism on the recreation department and personnel.

Our most important single asset — the youth of our community — are the ones who suffer because recreation facilities have not kept pace with the city's growth.

I would like to point to the fact that there has been no single major improvement in the physical facilities of Daly City's recreation program since completion of the War Memorial Building in 1952.

Our future citizens must have more adequate recreation facilities. Specific action to launch an expansion program for recreation facilities must come from the city council.

I urge every council candidate to give this important phase of our community welfare more than passing thought. I earnestly hope that whoever is successful in the April 10 election will renew interest in this much-neglected field.

Colma K-6

Mrs. Navone's second grade class at Colma K-6 School have had a busy schedule already this year. They have completed a unit in science on "What Causes Night and Day," and a unit in social studies on "The Bakery."

For their bakery unit their activities included making their own dough. Kenneth Jensen, Laura Tripp, Noreen Gilmore, Edwin Harper, Danny Dezman, Timothy Roylance, Bradly, Nobles, and Vicki Pekarek brought the supplies and helped to make bread.

The class also took a study trip to Kilpatrick's Bakery in San Francisco to see the complete process of making bread. The children were given free samples of bakery products and booklets explaining how bread was made. Mrs. Huston and Mrs. Tripp accompanied the class on the trip. The children are very proud of the booklets they have completed showing all they have learned about the bakery.

On March 16 the class went to the Daly City Library to hear the children's librarian, Miss Rosemary Kraus, explain how to use the library and how boys and girls can check out books. She also told about some of the many books available in the library. Some of the children got applications for library cards.

Colma K-6

On Friday, March 16, Miss Kelly's second grade class at Colma K-6 School took a trip to the San Francisco International Airport.

The class was taken through a 109-passenger United Air Lines jet plane, which was being serviced in the hangar.

The class was shown around by Mr. Dunsmore, who let the children seat themselves in the plane while he explained the various buttons around them. He gave the class some information about how fast jets fly, what affects their speed, how heavy they are, etc. He then took six children at a time through the cockpit of the plane, explaining various instruments and answering questions.

The trip was the highlight of the unit the children have been studying on transportation.

Westmoor Teacher Appointed To State Education Council

Richard D. Hart, teacher-counselor at Westmoor High School, has been appointed to the State Council of Education of the California Teachers Association (CTA), it was announced today.

Dr. Arthur F. Corey, CTA executive secretary, said Hart has been assigned to the Council's Youth Activities and Welfare Committee, one of 10 committees which formulate CTA policy toward developing and maintaining high standards for the teaching profession.

Other offices held in professional and community organizations by Hart include treasurer of the legislation committee of the Jefferson Union High School District Teachers Association.

Mr. Hart lives at 2 Coronado avenue, Apt. 20, Daly City.

Dr. Corey said the CTA, now nearly 100 years old, is supported by the voluntary dues of 123,000 members, 100,000 of whom are classroom teachers in all areas of professional service, primary grades through higher education.

George Washington

During general assembly at the George Washington Grade School a telegram from the Red Cross was read by Fred Schweickhardt, principal, to the student body thanking them for the place mats and favors made by the students under the leadership of Mrs. Margaret Clarke's fifth grade for the main feature.

Highlights of the Civil War were portrayed to the student body and parents by the following cast: Announcers, Christine Elliott, Lynda Chow. Pupils: Jeffrey Hormick, Geraldine White, Judy Newkirk, Tony Micheletti, Dennis Capu, Anderson, Ethel Kaufman, Lynda Chow. Nurses: Magdeline Moore Patricia Smitherman, Elizabeth Goodner. Decathlon Completed

The fifth and sixth grades of the Fernando Rivera School have recently completed decathlon activities.

Each pupil was given a decathlon participation classification letter. The six letter classes were: A, B, C, D, E and F. The purpose of each classification letter permitted the pupils to demonstrate and evaluate their physical decathlon achievements with pupils of comparable age, height and weight.

The activities included the 50-yard dash, softball, basketball and football throw, basketball timed shots, push-ups, chin-ups, sit-ups, standing broad jump and the hop, skip and jump.

All the activities were demonstrated during the physical education periods and administrated by each regular classroom teacher.

During the month of May, the boys and girls will have another opportunity to show their athletic skills and compare their achievements with those of February.

Indian Studies

"The Indians of the Southwest" is the topic of the unit that is keeping Mrs. Olga Pless' third grade of Abraham Lincoln Elementary School busy these days. On Tuesday, March 20, the class visited the Junior Museum in San Francisco, where they viewed the Pueblo Indian exhibits and were shown a movie on California wild animals.

Of special interest to the children was a live skunk which they were privileged to hold, a pet boa constrictor which wrapped itself around their necks, and a fat, bashful raccoon which blinked its beady eyes at them.

In the classroom, the students are furthering their Indian project by weaving baskets, crushing acorns into meal, shaping ollas for use as water jugs and forming belts and beads of various shiny objects. Room 9 at the moment appears as a busy Indian village of early California days.

Colma K-6

Have you ever found a lost dog crying on a street corner or found a family of racoons playing in your driveway?

Mrs. Clara Martin's first grade class at Colma K-6 School, recently learned more about the responsibility of caring for pets as a result of the visit of a resource person from the Peninsula Humane Society.

The children also had a surprise visitor, named "Boo," a brindle pekingese, who told a story of how pets must be taken care of and the importance of being licensed.

Miss Gay Allen, the resource person, is sent through the auspices of the Peninsula Humane Society, 1225 Peninsula avenue, San Mateo.

This is a new formed service of the society and deserves the support of our community to make it successful. Miss Allen can also bring other animals to meet the children, such as a doe, a kid and a raccoon. The use of such a resource person in the classroom is invaluable in helping children learn more about the responsibilities of owning and caring for a pet.

Mrs. Martin's class gained valuable information from Miss Allen to help them understand another phase of animal care in their study of "Pets."

Research Study

Vista Mar has engaged in a research study with the University of Chicago wherein five classes in the school were given a questionnaire which endeavored to evaluate citizenship learnings and attitudes, at different grade levels.

This research study involved a second, third, fourth and two fifth grades and identification date is coded so that the respondent's identity remains completely anonymous.

The material collected will be reported back to the school within a year. This will help us evaluate attitude development at different grade levels.

With these findings, there will be definite implications for curriculum planning in terms of the effect of modern communication and transportation as they affect children's interest and their comcepts of citizenship, as well as to point out the educative processes by which children acquire the role of citizens in a democracy.

Other metropolitan areas in which the study is to be conducted are Boston, Chicago, Portland, Me., Tacoma, Wash., Jackson, Miss., Atlanta, Ga., San Francisco and Sioux City, Iowa.

The study is being conducted through a grant of $140,000 of Education, and interpreta- from the United States Office tion is in the hands of Professor Robert Mass, chairman of the Committee of Human Development at the University of Chicago.

Olympia School

The class council of Olympia School had its weekly meeting to discuss plans for an assembly the council will sponsor in April. Some of the classes will put on dramatic plays, puppet plays and a rhythm band. Another project on which they are working is a plaque, displaying the names of the council members to be placed at the entrance to the office.

The children in Mrs. Snell's first grade class all brought their baby pictures to class. They played the game "Who Am I?" in order to determine who's baby picture belonged to whom. The children were quite excited and enjoyed the game. From this came a discussion of how much we grow each year and our responsibility to help provide proper food, rest and care in order for the body to grow properly.

The children in the kindergarten classes taught by Mrs. Hammond visited the Aquarium on Tuesday April 12, for the purpose of observing the structure and habits of various kinds of sea life. The children will culminate this experience with a mural using the knowledge acquired in a meaningful way.

Anthony Jones from the morning kindergarten class took snapshots of his classmates as well as pictures of the alligators and the whales at the entrance of the acquarium. He will share these pictures with both kindergarten classes.

Miss Cottrell's second grade has an active little visitor with them. Gary Larsen has brought "her" to share with them until the end of the school year. The spunky little visitor is a chipmunk whose name is "Chipper."

Vista Mar School

"Billy Jones," a make believe earthboy, has come to join the boys and girls in Mrs. Jane Cain's third grade class at Vista Mar. Each day he brings the children exciting information about space, rockets and satellites.

The very informative facts are then used by the children in their committees as they do their group work. The class has set up groups with the following members: Current News Scrapbook—Allan Back, Kathleen Cash, Dawn Tedford. Mural — Cathy Tuttle, Diane Glicksman, Larry Perret, Darlene Anderson, Patti Graves, Ross Ross. Tracking Stations—Karen Landis, Diane Bourboulis, Marco Simonetti, Caren Ramsell. Building the Capsule —Steven Leitner, Curtis Blake, Robert Bosetti, Rudy Christian.

Space Suit and Equipment—Carlos Sandoval, Nick Lucas, Randy Fitzgerald, Jeff Kaus. Reports from Moon-Men—Harold Minkin, George Lex, Gail Graham. Dramatic Play—Christine Nichols, Linda Karp, Debby Galway, Douglas Hecht, Jim Sorensen. Famous People in Space—Susan West, Janice Martin, Sharon Panelli.

Susan Ostergard, student teacher, is also very involved with these third graders in their study.

Michele Seesee and Jim Torlakson kicked off the Junior Red Cross drive at Vista Mar at an assembly wherein they motivated the group by relating their experiences which they gathered from attendance at the Junior Red Cross regional conference in Burlingame.

After Michele and Jim gave their presentations, students asked questions relative to Junior Red Cross activities and the extent of activities on a state, national and international basis.

The Junior Red Cross News, a regular county publication, lists Vista Mar as a participant in two areas of the Junior Red Cross activities — State and International.

Vista Mar

Vista Mar and Superintendent Foster were recently host to Professor De Haas and Rolla as well as twenty architect students from the University of Montana.

The students were interested in how the design and structure of the school affected the various learning concepts as well as identifying children's reactions to visitors. Professor Rolla noted that students appeared unconcerned and undisturbed as the large group of visitors walked about the court and visited in the room.

After touring the building the group met in the multi-use room with Superintendent Foster and the principal, Miss Marjorie Tobias for refreshments and a question and answer period.

The Vista Mar second graders in Mrs. Jeanne Oberlander's room have been studying about "Hearing." The unit was developed and presented jointly by Mrs. Oberlander and her student teacher, Henrietta Robinson.

At the close of the unit, the boys and girls were allowed to experiment with some hearing aids which were loaned to the school by Mr. John Darby of the San Francisco Hearing Society.

Interest in "How We Hear" was so great in the classroom that the children spent the following week studying "What We Hear" and more about sound, which involved areas of physical science, music, and various other curriculum activities.

The third grade class of Miss Marca Evans at Vista Mar is currently studying the orchestra and the instruments in the orchestra. They have listened to records of "Dusty in Orchestraville," learning to recognize the sound of each instrument.

Instrumental pieces such as "The 1812 Overture' 'are being planned for future listening, as well as many other worthwhile records.

Health Project

Health and the constant need for more knowledge concerning it, is the present project being visually studied by the sixth grade of Abraham Lincoln Elementary School, Miss Beite Wilson, teacher. These young scientiest have experimented with the growth and reproduction of bacteria by sterilizing four petri dishes, in which they have placed a jelly-like substance.

Into the first dish they put a hair, into the second a fingerprint, into the third a cough, and into the fourth some saliva. By observing the development of white spot clusters which appeared in each petri dish, the class has learned that bacteria needs food, warmth and a fairly dark place in order to live.

Learning that bacteria will die in temperatures over 212 degrees F. or under 32 degrees F. the reasons for keeping food on ice or for boiling food before eating is readily understood by the children.

LINEN FOR THE CAR

Of all the materials that you might find to clean the glass of the windshield and car windows, linen is rated the best by most car makers, reports the National Automobile Club.

Linen possesses the special property of removing dirt and grease most readily from the glass and yet leaving it free from lint. The older the piece of linen used, the better it will function.

Tops Asks For New Members

TOPS hope to obtain new members for an organized chapter of the Tops Goal Diggers.

TOPS stands for "take off pounds" sensibly and is for women with a serious weight problem who need to lose 20 pounds or more.

The purpose of TOPS is primarily to help the overweight who are sincerely interested in losing pounds sensibly.

It is based on the principle of "group therapy," getting together a group of people who have a problem in common and discussing it frankly without fear of being laughed at or misunderstood. TOPS is not a course of a few weeks or months duration. It is a well planned, continuing program dedicated to helping the overweight.

Teameaching Tried At Beamin Franklin

By Jim Golrough

The Benjai Franklin School in Broad has come up with a sixrade program this year has been so successful thacould well become standarocedure for every sixth gra

Team teachin the name of the programd it is an effort to bridge gap between the oneacher-one classroom arranent found in the fifth grand the rotation system t begins in the sevetnh.

Team-teachinga new idea that so far has nd its way into a few highhools, but almost no lower-de schools. The high schoolstem most often uses two teers in the same classroom ne to lecture half the c and the other to meet discussion with the other h The Ben Franklin system ses two teachers, but alscilizes two classrooms.

One parent, MrJoseph E. Elliott, 923 Brey drive, Colma, thinks thsuccess of the Ben Franklinrogram is in part the result the team teaching idea, and part the two teachers, Phis Rooney and Pat Whitfield.

"They're both itstanding teachers with a spal ability to work with this gde level," said Mrs. Elliott. I'm sure that their studentsuld have an inspiring yearnder the regular system, toHowever, I also feel that thewo-teacher system is superi of itself. Even two mediocteachers would have more offer the children."

Probably the st direct benefit of the idis that it allows the teacherto specialize in their own bjects on the elementary vel. Miss Whitfield teaches lguage and social studies; Ms Rooney science and matheatics. The children go from ne to the other allowing eh teacher her specialty, andthemselves preparing for the tation system that will bein in the seventh grade.

"We have moreime to split up on project wor" said Miss Whitfield, "and e also can provide more vels of instruction. We hav six reading groups insteadof the usual three."

This is the first year that Ben Franklin junior high has had a sixth grade. Children in the area ordinarily attend Garden Village from kindergarten through fifth grade, and then move on to M. Pauline Brown school. But this year M. Pauline Brown was full, while there was space available at Franklin, ordinarily a seventh and eighth grade school. So the sixth grade, temporarily at least, is a fact at Franklin.

It seemed an ideal situation to prepare the children for the transition to junior high. After all, it was a junior high they were attending. The result has been team teaching.

School principal Len Herbst likes the idea and thinks it has a good chance of spreading to other schools. "We'll evaluate it at the end of the year and see what we've accomplished," said Herbst. "Then we'll know more."

Herbst also thinks that the Franklin approach has advantages over the high school approach of two teachers in the same classroom. "It's not as expensive as the other one," he said. "We haven't had to enlarge our staff."

The high school approach typically calls for increased facilities — if the two teachers accommodate two classes; or a larger staff — if the two teachers work with only one class.

Ben Franklin has needed neither.

The two teachers — Miss Rooney and Miss Whitfield — no doubt deserve a major share of the credit. Both have been teaching the sixth grade since getting an education degree in 1958. Phyllis Rooney, from UCLA, taught at Vista Mar before moving to Franklin; Pat Whitfield, from Cal, started at Franklin, moved to Vista Mar, and then back to Franklin.

They like the new idea, and say it works better not only for the children but for the teacher. The sixth grade teacher usually must teach all the subjects. This way she can specialize.

"We're each teaching what we're most interested in," said Miss Rooney, "and the child just has to benefit."

Church Membership Week In Progress

Pointing members toward Christian maturity and appreciation for and service through church membership, the week has become an annual event in some 10,000 Southern Baptist Churches.

On Sunday evenings during the month of March, a series of four filmstrips entitled "What Baptists Believe" has been featured preluding the week of study.

Saints Speak To Holy Angels

The fathers and sons of Holy Angels Church gathered in the parish hall on Sunday, March 11, for their annual breakfast following Mass and Communion. The event sponsored by the Holy Name Society was one of the most successful in recent years, due in great part to guest speakers Kevin O'Shea and Jim Francis of the San Francisco Saints Basketball team who were introduced by Con Dempsey, former star pitcher of the San Francisco Seals.

Kevin O'Shea, former All-American from Notre Dame, and presently general manager of the Saints, gave the background and cited the optimistic future of the local club as well as possible expansion of teams in the Western division of the American Basketball League. O'Shea compared the American Basketball League with the National Basketball League and felt that even though the NBY was better established, more exciting basketball was played in his league.

Jim Francis, center and leading scorer for the Saints, acquainted the Fathers and Sons with the player personnel of the club and gave a rundown on many of the league's stars.

Francis further stated that the smaller boys should not be discouraged, as one of the best professional players, namely Bob Cousey of the Boston Celtics, is only six feet tall.

Of course, he went on, the smaller player has to work harder to perfect his skills.

Francis also related how important his Catholic background and training has been to him and what a wonderful aid religion can be when young men venture forth into the highly competitive world of sports or business.

Both O'Shea and Francis told how important associations, both academic and athletic, in college, often prove opportune in the future of young men.

An informative question-answer period followed the talks.

"One Great Hour of Sharing" gifts do not go into a common fund but are expended by the denomination receiving them. Methodist gifts are devoted to the following causes: Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief; the Crusade Scholarship Fund; and the Ministry for Servicemen Overseas.

The sacrament of Holy Communion will be observed, with the pastor bringing the mediation entitled "The Shepherd and His Sheep."

Annual Smorgasbord At Westlake Lutheran

"Home was never like this," was heard quite frequently as hungry guests tried to choose from the colorful array of tempting foods prepared by the women's group in the church.

The dinner, which has become an annual treat, took the place of the regular monthly meeting of the A. L. C. W. (American Lutheran Church Women).

Mrs. LaVerne Taylor was chairman of the project and Mrs. Beverly Pelton was "decorations" chairman. Her theme carried out the cheerful yellow and greens of spring and made a wonderful seeting for the food. Mrs. Carl Waldeck, president of the group, held a short business meeting before presenting the entertainment for the event.

Sports Philosophy From An Acerb Serb

MIKE PROBABLY HAS ENOUGH eccentricity for the rest of the team anyway. But as he says it's their job to play the ballgame, to work as a team — not to get out there and show-off.

Orlich is the kind of guy you want to coach the kids. An ex-steel worker and shipyarder who has been around enough to know sport and know men, and develop that inside kind of ethics that isn't based on philosophy but rather the FEEL for right and wrong.

That's always the best kind of coach. No jazz, just natural leadership that comes when someone knows how to act when others around him are still wondering.

Mike Orlich is the Jefferson High School director of athletics — which sounds pretty fancy. In simpler terms, he is the basketball coach. He wandered up to this hill city 14 years ago, which puts him here about as long as most of his proteges have been alive.

Mike Orlich

Half of Mike is the shipyarder turned Casey Stengel. Loud, gruff, volatile—at a game sometimes it's more interesting to watch him than the players.

The other half is harder to define. It's like a bit a' Gaelic charm (though Orlich is Serbian) that comes across when he's telling a story. Basically, I think it is politeness, a fairness that says I will speak and you will speak and we'll see what we can learn.

* * * *

SOMETIMES, LIKE IN '60-61, MIKE has a great team. Sometimes, like in '61-62, he doesn't. But his teams don't quit — even the ones that don't win. This year's Indians only won three, but they had a chance in all of them. The only reason they didn't win more is that they couldn't shoot.

* * * *

Three games this year; last year 22. Yet Mike says this team had more heart than any other he has coaches.

"The boys knew they weren't as good," he said, "and they were less confident. But though confidence has a lot to do with attitude their attitude was always right. They simply played as well as they could."

Basically, Mike's approach is a simple one. The kids play ball. And that's all they do. No histrionics, no baiting, no mouthing off, no bleeding hearts. Just ball. It's hard for a phony to make it under those circumstances.

"If there's fighting to do, I do it," he said. "Not one of my kids has said so much as an unkind word. They call the referee 'sir'."

I asked him why the "sir."

"Because then they're acting as if both they and the referee are gentlemen. Any time one of my kids gets a technical foul called on him, I yank him. And I've only had to do that twice."

* * * *

HE MAY BELIEVE IN THE GENTLEMAN'S approach, but that doesn't mean that you GIVE anything away.

Like in the Burlingame game last February when the official got confused on some calls, and when Orlich pointed out his folly, a technical foul was called. And then after the foul, the referee gave the ball to Burlingame out of bounds which was also wrong, and Mike suggested this again and was told to sit down.

* * * *

At this point, he told the referee that he was protesting the game, which he did, and won. If it accomplished nothing else, it should at least get the officials to read the rule book.

There was another time, in Palo Alto in 1951, when there were but eight teams on the whole Peninsula, and the league stretched from Daly City to San Jose.

Jeff was playing Palo Alto High, and the Altans were leading, 50-49, with three seconds left. But a foul was called, and an Indian went to the line for two shots.

Wanting no part of such a situation, some student who had been running the clock, started it. And as the players addressed themselves to the line, the buzzer sounded.

"Everybody just disappeared," said Mike. "I jumped up and ran around trying to get somebody, but they all just left. The students, the officials, the other team just disappeared. What could I do? We protested the game but they just said it was their judgment against mine and didn't do a thing."

* * * *

ORLICH, LIKE SOME MEMBER of Napoleon's army, bears a multitude of official titles. He is, in addition to Jeff director of athletics, secretary of the Collegiate Officials Association, recreation co-ordinator for Garden Village PTA and ex-commissioner of the San Mateo Recreational Department. He is known around Daly City by the sobriquet of "Mr. Recreation."

And when he gets an ear to hear him out on Daly City recreation, it's hard to get away.

We don't really know what we are around here," he told me. "It's a tough situation. We're caught in between San Francisco on one side and the Peninsula cities on the other, and we're not a part of either."

What do we need, I asked him.

"Pools," he said. "I'd like to see a pool in every high school. Certainly we need one at Westmoor. And I'd like to see more co-ordination between the recreation department and the school system. Half the time we're doing the same thing. You need a school man and a city man to work things out."

Evidently Daly City is losing a lot of good athletes to San Francisco schools. Orlich just wants things to be good enough around here so they don't all leave.

"One of the best basketball players I ever groomed, John Galton of USF, left here and went to Riordan. He lived in Brisbane and should have come here. We lose lots of men.

"Just look at our city. We work in San Francisco, go there for entertainment, read San Francisco newspapers, everything is San Francisco. But the kids have to attend school here. For the parents it's just a bedroom city."

MIKE IS ONE OF THOSE MEN, and there are others, who is trying to make Daly City something more for the kids than a place to hang their hats.

Coaches have a lot of influence. Like milkmen, firemen, policemen and busdrivers, kids grow up wanting to be coaches because these are the only men the kids ever see. The father who is doing time in an ad agency or an insurance business never sees his kids except maybe at dinner when he's tired.

In the summer time, Mike knocks off after his swimming program is finished and sequesters to his cabin at Lake Tahoe for a few weeks of meditation. His favorite diversion up there is visiting the ghost towns.

When he's home, he spends his idle moments in the rather esoteric pursuit of numismatics

And I suppose as good a way as any to end this column is to suggest that you look that one up.

Westmoor Offense Falters

The Westmoor baseballers continued to run into trouble last week as they dropped games to the UC Frosh and to Burlingame.

In the March 20 encounter in Berkeley, three Ram pitchers faced a Cal onslaught of 12 runs and 10 hits. Final score was 10-1. Only freshman Dave Williams enjoyed a measure of success as he set down the Cubs in the last inning without a hit.

Seven walks by Ram pitchers and six errors afield hurt the Westmoor cause.

The lone tally for the Daly City nine came in the seventh inning when outfielder Scott Shackelford tripled and came in on an error. Shackelford got two of the four Ram hits. A single by Steve Schmuck and a double by Tito Torres were the only other Ram safeties.

Burlingame

In the Friday Burlingame contest, Panther pitcher Steve Carpender toiled six long innings on the mound before finally giving the Rams a hit.

A solid double to left with one down in the seventh ruined his bid for a no-hitter.

Tim Pinelli, Rams starting pitcher, got by the first inning, but in the second frame four singles, three after two outs were recorded, brought across four Burlingame runs.

Dave Williams again was impressive in relief as he came in for the third inning and after giving up two runs settled down to pitch scoreless ball the rest of the way.

The Rams open the Peninsula League season on Friday with a home game against Aragon.

Volleyball Set At Ben. Franklin

The eighth grade intra-mural volleyball playoffs will be held Wednesday, March 28, in the school multi-use room after school. The American and National League winners have not as yet been determined. The last two days of games will decide the lague winners on Monday and Tuesday, and the right to play for the pennant.

Last week's volleyball match that was announced between Benjamin Franklin and Parkside school in San Bruno was cancelled and will be held on Thursday, March 29, in the Benjamin Franklin multi-use room.

Anybody Interested?

At the City Council meeting Monday night, Mayor St. Clair indicated that he was concerned about the youth of Daly City. He was referring to the recent knifings and fights that have occurred in various parts of the town.

He suggested that a youth council be formed to act as a "sounding board" for teen age problems.

At the same meeting, candidate Paris Simmons suggested that Daly City has more than a normal amount of juvenile aberration. He said he would produce figures to bear this out. He also said he would assist in any kind of a program.

All the candidates are saying that recreation in Daly City is one of their main concerns.

Joe Sarto, an old-timer in DC recreation, and sponsor of many fine youth programs, has been running ads each week in this paper that speak of the inadequacy of DC recreation.

Everybody wants to do something.

Most of the Daly City recreation programs are directed toward younger children. A large void exists in teen-age recreation. This is the age group currently receiving the attention.

One program that is coming up is the Peninsula Police Athletic League summer baseball league. This league for 16 and 17 year old boys is expanding and trying to get a Daly City entry. The directors feel that most cities direct recreation toward younger children, and leave teen-age recreation in a state of limbo.

So far some people in Daly City have expressed interest in joining the league, but sponsors and coaches have been harder to come by.

The team can be sponsored and coached by anybody. It does not have to be PAL. But it has to represent Daly City.

Competition for this age group is usually provided by the American Legion. Daly City does not have a Legion team. The Peninsula PAL is an effort to fill this void.

So far the league has Redwood City, Menlo Park, Belmont, San Carlos and South San Francisco. Representatives are hopeful of gaining teams from Daly City, San Bruno, Millbrae and Burlingame.

Co-ordinator is Ed Mitchell at LY 1-5206.

RAMS UNDEFEATED ON THE FAIRWAY

The undefeated Westmoor golf team romped over Capuchino by the score of 18 to 3 on the 18 hole Lake Merced golf course, March 20. This is the third straight win for the Rams, the first by the score of 11-10 over South San Francisco and the second victory was over Terra Nova, 15-6.

Veteran Jim Fair led the Rams to victory over Capuchino with a 76 and a hot putter to overcome his opponent. Westmoor's second man was Rich Perazzo who managed to win the second nine for a point, and together with Fair won 2½ out of a possible 3 points on the best ball match.

Playing in the second foursome for Westmoor were third man Tony Bento and fourth man Dennis Mori. Bento won 2½ points over his opponent with an 81, and Mori won all 3 points with a 79. Together, Tony and Dennis took all three points in the best ball.

Newcomer to the squad was Ron Johnston, who was playing the Lake Merced layout for the first time and shot an 18 hole total of 83, taking all three points over his opponent.

Coach Tony Giammona said after the match that the next two league meets with Mills on April 3 and Burlingame will decide the outcome. They are the teams to beat.

Safe Boating Classes Slated In Pacifica

Flotilla No. 17, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, will begin classes in "Basic Seamanship and Small Boat Handling" on March 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Westview Elementary School. The school is located behind the Flying "A" Station on Skyline blvd and Manor Dr. in Pacifica. The course is open to all ages and there is no charge.

If you are a prospective boat owner, have purchased a boat recently, or an "old salt," you will gain much from these classes that will help you enjoy your boat and promote boating safety.

Statistics show that most boating accidents are a direct result of ignorance of the rules and regulations, as well as the changing conditions due to the elements of wind and weather. This course will be presented in nine weeks, covering all phases of boating for the yachtsman and outboarder. Registration will begin at 7:15 p.m. on opening night.

Harrison BYA Club Downs Merced, 8-2

George Harrison Realty BYA defeated Parkmerced last Saturday, 8-2. Heavy hitting in the final innings broke open a close game and led BYA to the win.

The BYA attack was led by Guy and Bud Kubowitz, George Garber and Dennis Dickey. Bob Kinderman got the win.

Las Vegas oddsmakers have tagged the Yankees and Dodgers to meet in the World Series this year. The Yanks have been installed 1-2 favorites to capture the American League flag, and the Dodgers are 9-5 in the National.

Indians Bring Daly City First Baseball Win

Practice League Underway

King Baseball is flexing his muscles in Daly City. Breaking precedent, he arrived on March 10 instead of his usual May entrance.

Local teams of the Daly City Athletic Federation broke out the spikes and gloves in early February this year. Their interest prompted the Daly City department of recreation to set up a practice schedule for the teams. While this schedule takes the form of a regular league with umpires and all, it is directed towards a low pressure development situation.

Teams have unlimited rosters and league standings are not compiled. There will be no winner of the league declared. Emphasis is to be placed upon playing all the boys and giving them a chance to develop their skill under regular game conditions. Rain-outs or postponed games are not re-scheduled.

This early practice should really make competition in the annual midget and junior leagues a tremendous thing. Normally, the boys play halfway through the regular league before they smooth out their teamwork. In May, when the Daly City Twilight League starts, they will be ready to take right off in high gear.

Organizational plans for the 1962 Daly City Twilight Leagues are underway. Starting date for the league will be May 5 and teams interested in entering must have their rosters in by April 23.

Further information on Daly City baseball leagues can be had by calling the Department of Recreation at PL 5-0850, extension 18.

Alaska was first organized in 1884 as a Federal "District" governed by the laws of the State of Oregon.

With pitcher Bob Miller going all the way on the mound, Jefferson won its first ball game of the year last Friday, a 5-4 victory over Riordan.

Miller struck out 11 on the way to his first win, and walked only two. He weakened only in the last inning when Riordan put together three singles, two walks and a hit-batsman for three runs. The rally fell one short.

Jeff scored first in the first frame when Pryor Bailey got his first of three hits, a double to left. Rich Reitz singled him across.

In the second, a base on balls to Wayne Stoller, followed by a ground-out and a Bob Easley single, made it 2-0.

The Indians stretched it to 3-0 in the third on a two-base error on Mike Morton's grounder, and a single by Bailey.

After Riordan touched Miller for a single tally in the last of the firth, the Indians came back with two in the seventh to stretch the lead to 5-1 going into the final home frame.

In the top of the seventh, Bailey singled, Reitz singled and when the ball got through the centerfielder, Bailey came around to score. Reitz got to third on the error. A walk to Miller and a single by catcher Al Cacicedo brought across the Indians' final score.

It's SPARE TIME
at Westlake Bowl

by Jim Grealish

Every day (especially Monday and Friday) is Ladies' Day at Westlake. Starting April 2 and 6, there will be weekly features for both low and high average lady bowlers. On Mondays at 1:30 p.m. for the higher average bowlers, there will be a weekly Powder Puff Swiss Singles with the professional National Bowling League system of scoring. The entry fee of $3 will provide a sizeable prize fund on a ratio of one for each ten entries. For the social bowlers, there will be a weekly "No-Tap" Tournament on Fridays at 2 p.m. again with prizes on the basis of one for each ten entries.

Butch Harmon set two new records in the Mayfair Strike League as he finished with a big 254 game for a 611 series, both new highs for the league.

The leading lady of the week had to be Helen Vincent with her first series over the six hundred mark, a 605 total on games of 229-200 and 176 in the Happy Mixed Fives League.

We hope to see Jerry Johnson back in action soon. The smiling league secretary and San Francisco Women's Bowling Association Vice-President is temporarily confined to Letterman Hospital.

The two 900 Scratch Leagues continue their torrid pace which will end with a rolloff between them at the end of the regular season. Last week Hal Antrim of the National League was high with a 645 total on games of 188-248-209 although Boyd Hillyer took the high single game honors with a 265 effort, while Ron Anguillo's 637 on games of 183-208-246 was high for the American League. Other high shoters were Allen Pettigrew with 624, Primo Liberatore with 621 and Al Edwards with 617, missing a 207 triplicate by only four pins.

Dan Connors was "out in space" in the Second Missile Battalion League as he led his fellow missilemen with a 211 game and 536 series.

Harriet Mack's 194 game and 541 series were high for the Ladies 785 Scratch League while other league leaders among the fairer sex were Edna Cregan's 178/475 in the Evening Stars League, Joan Gisler's 176/484 in the 99'ers Mixed Fives, Arlene Keough's 172/438 in the Daly City Employees League, Mary Hottal's 160/455 in the Southgate Mixed Fives, Beth Nielson's 179/499 in the Ball and Chain Mixed Fives.

KSFO announcer Bob Hansen had a game and series to broadcast as he rolled a 203 game and 584 series in the Golden Gate Handicap.

Sunday, April 1, marks the end of the qualifying period for the Westlake League Championship for both men and women. The top 25% of the qualifiers then go on to the semi-final round the following weekend. On the final weekend, squads are scheduled at 4 p.m. Saturday and noon Sunday.

Jerry Kennedy fell seven pins short of the coveted six hundred mark but his 202 game and 593 were enough to lead the 825 Scratch League.

Again Dick Hayes was a double leader as his 200 game and 561 series were high for the 811 Scratch League Monday while Wednesday found him leading the 99'ers Mixed Fives with 236 and 584.

The daytime lady bowlers are starting preparations for an invasion of Lucky Lanes to shoot in the Northern California Bowling Proprietors Association Housewives' Tournament. There will be a chartered bus, buffet, community singing, etc., to get the ladies in the mood for this 4 girl team tournament. The squad time will be announced next week and reservations may be made with Rick Dreier.

A truly "once in a lifetime" thrill came to Ruth Caven in the Holy Rollers League last Thursday morning as she converted the almost impossible "big four," the 4-6-7-10 split. For this, Ruth will receive the Women's International Bowling Congress patch.

Carol Dees again put the men to shame in the Broadmoor American Legion League with a 562 series although Art Cooper did his best to uphold the honor of the stronger (?) sex with a 221 game and 532 series.

Al Palmer continues his torrid pace in the Westlake Classic League with a 632 series on games of 195-204 and 224.

The 600 barrier was crashed in the Lake Merced League as Sal Spaminato had games of 165-214 and 223 for a 602 total.
